Pension Plan

Q. A recent news story mentions that Gov. Reagan signed a bill providing that only 12 months salary would be figured for retiring Los Angeles County employees. I am scheduled to retire in December with 30 years' service. How will this affect me? I am worried I will lose my retirement. L.M., Long Beach.

A. You have misunderstood the provisions of the bill. Under the present law, a county employee's retirement pension is determined by averaging the monthly salary for the three years he was most highly paid. Under the new bill, the pension would be figured on the average monthly salary for just the one year his salary was highest, thereby slightly increasing each person's retirement pension. However, the bill is enabling legislation and leaves to each county board of supervisors in the state the option to adopt or reject the measure for their particular county. The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors will not vote on the bill until November.

Card Game

Q. My husband got a veteran's card some time ago but he apparently misplaced it. These cards, which list your full income, are sent out once a year to veterans on pensions. Can you tell me what these cards are for? Mrs. E.B., Downey.

A. The card you describe sounds like the IBM Income Questionnaire Cards which are mailed each December, according to Richard Sorenson of the Veterans' Administration Regional Office in Los Angeles. These cards were to be returned by January, listing the veteran's total income. If they aren't returned, pension payments are suspended and the veteran is notified of the suspension. If your husband's V.A. checks were not suspended, he must have returned his completed card. If his checks have been stopped, he can call Sorenson in the contact division at 478-3711. He would be put back on the rolls after he gave a statement of his expected income for the year. The amount of the pension checks for the coming year are based on the pensioner's total income.

Aye, There's the Sting

Q. Recently we have been inundated by the biggest mosquitoes we have ever seen. In previous years people from the Mosquito Abatement program regularly have sprayed gutters and drainage ditches, but this year we haven't seen any evidence of this activity. Many gutters in the neighborhood are broken due to tree roots and water stands there for long periods. Can you find out what the situation is regarding spraying and advise us what to do? M.A.H., Long Beach.

A. Albert Geveshausen, superintendent of the Mosquito Abatement District in South Gate, went to your home, checked the neighborhood and found no breeding places. He said he would check further to see if mosquitoes could be breeding in an unused swimming pool. Your area is noted for the large amount of mosquitoes, thus, gutters and drainage ditches are sprayed on a weekly cycle. This spraying will continue, he said.

Talk Cheap?

Q. I have a speech problem and am wondering where there are any low cost therapists I can go to for help. J.W., Long Beach.

A. Both California State College at Long Beach, and California State College at Los Angeles, have speech clinics that may be able to help you. To make an appointment at the Long Beach clinic, call 433-0951. They will evaluate your problem and assign you to a therapist. The evaluation fee is $10. Speech therapy two days a week is $40 each semester. You can reach the Los Angeles clinic by calling the Associated Clinics office at 224-3523. They also charge a $10 evaluation fee, and $30 for each three months of therapy.

Pro-Airport

Q. I have read that the General Aviation Promotion Association frequently is identified with efforts to develop Long Beach Airport. As an interested citizen, I would like to offer my help and support. Can you tell me how to get in touch with them? B.V., Long Beach.

A. The General Aviation Promotion Association, a nonprofit corporation promoting the "encouragement and improvement of aviation in Long Beach," is headquartered at 3643 Atlantic Ave. The group primarily is a trade association, but membership also is open to interested citizens, according to Phil Lockwood, executive director. Membership fee is $5. An application for membership and a pamphlet outlining the group's goals are being sent to you. "Our interest is airport expansion," Lockwood said. "Whatever is good for the airport is good for Long Beach."

Arbor Day

Q. Can you please find out when the trees will be replaced on the parkway on Palo Verde Avenue between the San Diego Freeway and Willow Street? They were removed about a year ago, but still haven't been replaced. Why is it taking so long? Mrs. L.A.M., Long Beach.

A. The 20 callistemon trees for your neighborhood are now in stock and are scheduled for planting in the next month, said a spokesman for the city Street Tree Division. She explained that while the department had removed the tops of the old trees a year ago, they hadn't been able to remove the stumps until this February. Then they had to wait until they had the trees in stock.

Ecology Bill Wins Passage

State Would Penalize High
Compression Cars

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Measures opening two major tax sources for the war on smog and a bill slapping heavy registration penalties on high-performance, high-smog autos were approved Friday by the Assembly and sent to the Senate.

Both finance bills — an excise tax on cars and diversion of highway money to smog research and mass transit — stalled on several roll calls before each was approved by the bare minimum for passage.

But the bill assessing penalty registration fees of $50 to $300 a year on autos with high compression engines was approved 70-0.

SEVEN other environment bills, most of them dealing with planning restrictions or the environmental impact of state and local government projects, were also approved by the Assembly.

It was the biggest political test of the year of the environment issue, which dominated political rhetoric in the early months of the 1970 Legislature.

The measure to divert gasoline tax money to smog control and mass transit was approved 54-15, exactly the two-thirds margin in the 80-seat Assembly required for approval of an amendment to the state Constitution.

If it is also approved by two thirds of the Senate, the proposal by Assemblyman John Foran (D-San Francisco), will be placed on the November ballot for voter ratification.

A BILL by Assemblyman John Briggs, R-Fullerton, to finance a state environment fund with a four per cent excise tax on new car sales in California was approved 41-25, winning the minimum number of aye votes necessary for passage of a bill.

Briggs said the tax would replace a seven per cent excise tax being phased out by the federal government. He said it would raise $120 million a year for pollution control and research.

The penalty registration bill by Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, would add a $50-a-year charge to 1975 and later vehicles with compression ratios over 8.5 to 1.

The fee would be $100, at 9.0 to 1, with similar increases to a $300 top fee at 11.0 to 1 or more.

"THE HIGHER the compression ratio, the higher the nitrogen oxide which produces smog," Lanterman said. He called the proposed fee schedule "a contrivance to get the auto industry to deheat their motors."

END OF A BUSY DAY

Royal Pair Dance Under Stars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prince Charles wisely cracked his way through the U.S. Capitol Friday, his sister Anne broke ranks to race in a speedboat and their sightseeing yacht carried them away with the Union Jack flying, alas, upside down.

But the brief flying of the British flag in the international signal for distress at sea was hardly symbolic of the second day of the royal pair's first visit to the U.S.

With their youthful hosts, Tricia Nixon and Julie and David Eisenhower, at their sides, the Prince of Wales and Princess Anne strode, sailed and danced their way gaily through a typical 90-degree July day in the capital.

They strained to understand Sen. Strom Thurmond's thick South Carolina drawl. They were fascinated by George Washington's peace dove weather vane at Mount Vernon. And they seemed awed by Neil Armstrong, first man on the moon.

Topping the busy and at times hectic day of events was the social highlight of their visit, a dinner-dance under the stars on the White House lawn for 600 invited guests and a fireworks display at midnight.

The 21-year-old prince and heir to the British throne was the comedian of the day, leaving a trail of one-liners throughout the ornate chambers of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

When Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., fell in behind a line of pages on the Senate floor to shake his hand, Charles inquired, "Whom do you work for?"

L.A. Killings an Error; 2 Chicago Police Slain

Officers Cut Down by Sniper

CHICAGO (AP) — Two policemen assigned to a community friendship program were killed Friday evening by gunshots from a housing development in a Near North Side Negro neighborhood, police said.

Sgt. James Severin, 38, and patrolman Anthony Razzato, 37, both white, were killed as they walked across a baseball field near the highrise Cabrini Homes project, a scene of sporadic racial trouble.

Patrolman Jerry Yedlinski said he and two other officers were alerted by a passerby that two policemen were lying wounded a short distance away.

YEDLINSKI said that when they attempted to rescue the victims they were pinned to the ground by gunfire from the housing complex. An unidentified policeman at the scene said officers returned the sniper fire.

He said all shooting stopped soon afterward as a dozen or more squad cars and a police helicopter converged on the area.

Yedlinski said he and his partner rushed the shooting victims to Hennrich Hospital, where they were pronounced dead.

A 19-year-old youth was shot in the leg, apparently by the same gunman.

POLICEMEN sealed off the area and began a door-to-door search of the housing complex.

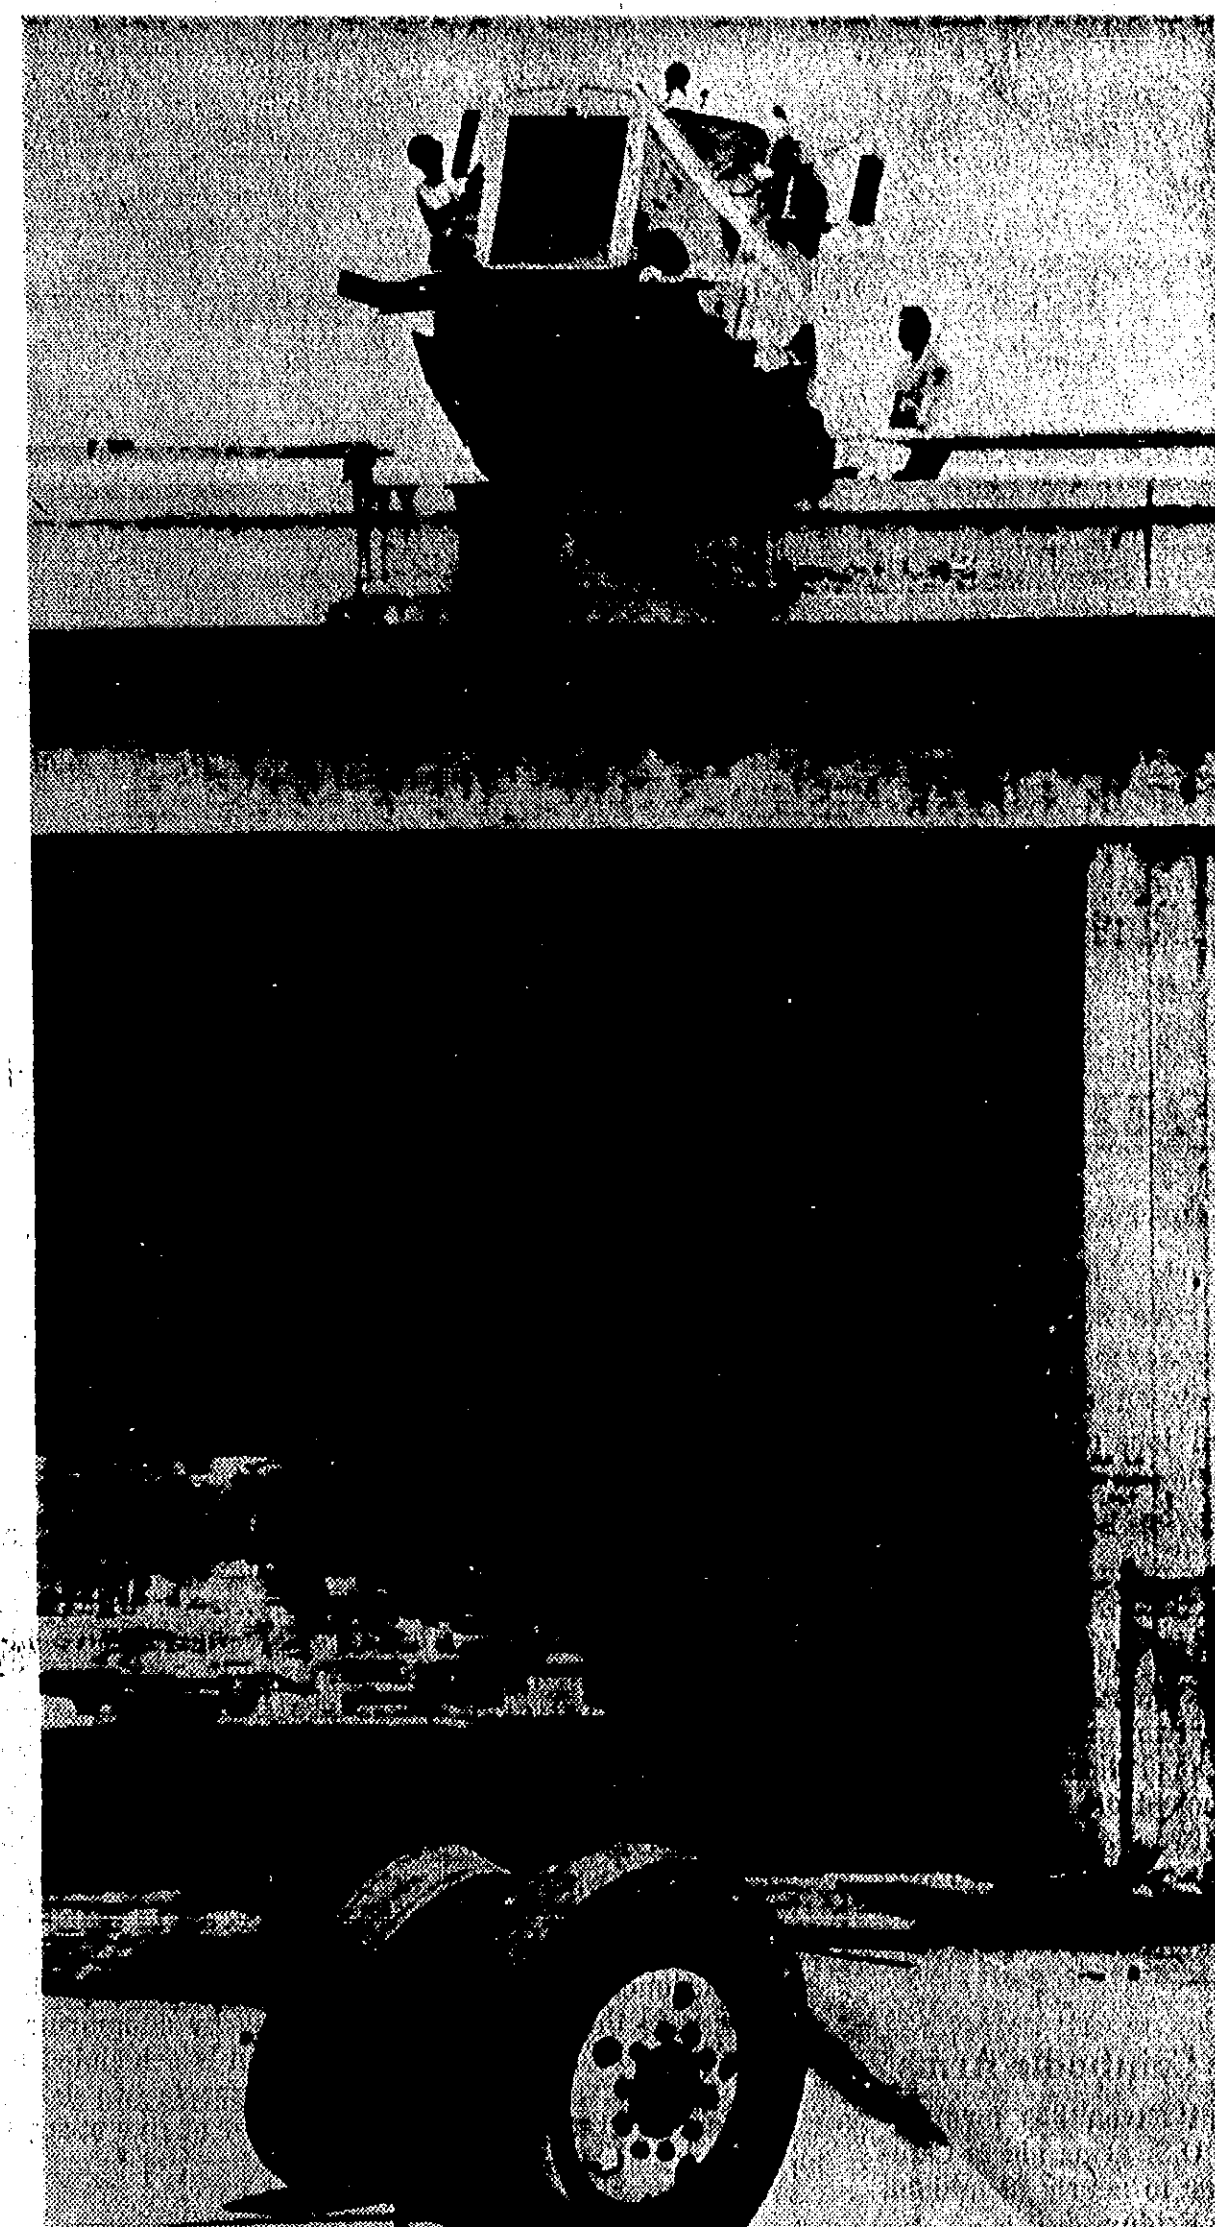

Police Lt. John Glass said Severin and Razzato were assigned to a "Walk and Talk Community Program," intended to put policemen in close contact with neighborhood residents and to develop friendly bonds.

Glass said he believes both men were on a "Walk and Talk" mission when they were killed.

Strong Quake Hits Aleutians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A strong earthquake hit the Aleutian Islands Friday night, 60 miles from the site where the U.S. is conducting massive underground nuclear tests.

The National Earthquake Information Center in Rockville, Md. said the quake occurred at 6:48 p.m. PDT and registered 6.3 on the Richter scale. A spokesman classified it as "strong."

'Acid Bath' Defendant Tries to Hurl Ashtray, Is Shackled

By GEORGE LAINE
and

Staff Writers

Testimony by a former girl friend triggered a violent courtroom outburst Friday by one of the two men charged with the "acid bath" murder of a Paramount man.

Compton Municipal Court Judge Richard J. Tobey ordered Dennis (Levi) Wallace, 27, handcuffed and shackled after the defendant attempted to hurl a heavy glass ashtray at the prosecuting attorney.

When the stormy preliminary hearing concluded the judge remanded Wallace and his co-defendant, Joseph Frank Samson, 35, to custody and ordered them to stand trial July 31 in Los Angeles Superior Court for the murder of 33-year-old James Summers.

A highlight of the testimony by Mrs. Roberta

Powell, Wallace's former girl friend, was her statement that Wallace had admitted Summers was dead and "was glad he was dead."

Wallace and Samson are charged with slaying Summers and then attempting to dispose of his body in a bathtub of sulfuric acid. The victim's remains were found last June 3 in his home at 8334 Wilburn St.

Unarmed Men Shot by Raiders

United Press International

A series of tragic mistakes apparently was the cause of the shooting deaths of two unarmed men in a downtown Los Angeles hotel during a combined police raid Thursday night.

Dead of gunshot wounds were Guillermo Sanchez, 22, and Beltran Sanchez, 23. They were believed to be Mexican nationals.

An informant reportedly told police that a man wanted for murder in San Leandro was in the area of the downtown hotel building. Police came heavily armed since suspect David Gorostiza said he would not be taken alive, according to police reports.

LOS ANGELES police accompanied two San Leandro officers to the apartment, according to Inspector Kenneth McCauley, who held a news conference Friday. He said Los Angeles officers Frank Gaines and Tom Hooker entered the hotel and located the room where the suspect was believed to have been.

Sergeant Gaines kicked down the door and a man tried to slam the door, according to McCauley. The door swung open and the man came at Gaines, he said.

GAINES FIRED one shot from his service revolver and stepped back. When he did so, he tripped over his partner. Hooker, thinking Gaines had been shot, opened up with his shotgun.

When the shooting started, two men leaped from the windows of the small room. Beltran Sanchez was shot on the way down by officers on the street.

FINE DAYS FOR WEEKEND

It'll be great outdoor weather from the beaches to the mountains in the Southland this weekend.

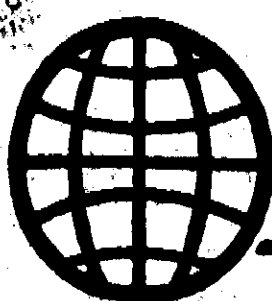

The Los Angeles Weather Bureau says temperatures will range in the low 80s throughout the Los Angeles basin both today and Sunday.

Temperatures will run about the same in the mountain areas but occasional scattered showers are expected there.

Allies Launch Massive Drive

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — Nearly 7,000 South Vietnamese and American troops have launched one of their biggest operations in two years in northern South Vietnam in an effort to destroy an enemy buildup. Waves of B-52 bombers rained tons of explosives in Laos and the border area, leading to speculation that South Vietnamese forces may be preparing for a push into Laos against the North Vietnamese supply network. Some 1,500 American Marines joined 5,000 government troops in one of two massive sweeps southwest of Da Nang. The big operation into the jungled foothills and mountains kicked off Thursday but information was withheld for two days for security reasons. The Marine-South Vietnamese operation was aimed at destroying two major North Vietnamese base camps between the coastal lowlands and the Laotian border.

Another $1 Million for Cambodia Arms

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has formally approved another $1 million in U.S. arms aid to Cambodia, bringing the total so far to nearly $9 million, the State Department disclosed Friday.

Troops Readied for Work in Struck Ports

LONDON — The British government authorized emergency powers Friday to move troops into the country's strikebound ports and to ration food and other vital commodities beginning at midnight. But it said it would use these powers only if absolutely necessary. It told jittery housewives there is plenty of food in the country and there is no need to panic about shortages.

Israel Presses Attacks, U.S. Blamed

TEL AVIV — Israeli planes attacked Egyptian Suez Canal positions Friday for the 57th consecutive day, and Egypt and the Soviet Union said only the continued support of the U.S. enabled Israel to pursue what they called an "aggressive, expansionist policy" in the Mideast. Israeli jet fighter-bombers also hit Arab guerrilla bases inside Lebanon and fierce cross-canal artillery duels wounded four Israeli soldiers. A U.S. military mission headed by Lt. Gen. James Edmundson, deputy chief of the U.S. strike command, and including Army officers and a State Department representative, conferred in Jerusalem Friday with foreign ministry officials, and there were reports Premier Golda Meir was planning another trip to Washington in quest of more U.S. military aid.

State Funeral for Murdered Aramburu

BUENOS AIRES — Argentina's military government ordered a full state funeral Friday for former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu and pledged to track down "to the last man" the Peronists responsible for his kidnap and murder. Aramburu's body was found Thursday, 48 days after he was kidnaped, beneath a layer of lime in the basement of a ranch home. Although badly decomposed, the body was positively identified Friday as that of Aramburu, 67. He had been bound and gagged and shot twice in the region of the heart.

Gaullist Leader's Brother Arrested

NICE, France — The brother of a Gaullist national assembly member was jailed Friday on charges of starting some of the brush fires that have ravaged the south of France for two days and routed thousands of Riviera vacationers. Ernest Bolo, 42, brother of Alexander Bolo, Gaullist deputy for Loire Atlantique, was remanded to Draguignan prison after he was formally charged with arson.

Another Explosion Shakes Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A loud explosion damaged a wheel well of a city bus in this tense capital city Friday, injuring a woman passenger aboard the vehicle. Police immediately began an investigation into the cause of the blast which occurred only one day after a terrorist bomb blew out the wall of a bank, injuring 31 persons.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Thurmond Turns on Nixon

Combined News Services

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., one of President Nixon's chief southern supporters, accused the administration Friday of breaking faith with the South over school desegregation policies and warned it could cost his re-election. "I am warning the Nixon administration — I repeat, I am warning the Nixon administration today — that the people of the South and the people of the nation will not support such unreasonable policies," Thurmond said in a Senate speech. "I remind the chief executive that the presidency is an elective office and that what the people give the people also can take away."

It was the first full-scale, broadside attack against Nixon made by Thurmond, who is credited with being the chief architect of Nixon's crucial southern campaign in the 1969 election. Thurmond referred specifically to the administration's removing the tax exempt status of private schools that practice segregation and its intention to send 100 school desegregation enforcement officers into the South.

"I condemn these actions," Thurmond said. "I strongly condemn them. Without end I condemn them. They are wrong as social policy and they are wrong as law."

Until Friday, Thurmond had been critical occasionally of administration policies. Eight days ago, at the time the Justice Department announced suits against the state of Mississippi and 27 suits in three other southern states, Thurmond laid the blame to "ultraliberal zealots who are holdovers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations." But Thurmond said Nixon had broken faith with him personally in the administration policy shift that apparently is directed at ending the tax-exempt status of all white-private schools in the South.

OTHER PLANS

Presidential counselor Robert Mayo passed up the prospect of a place in President Nixon's Cabinet Friday to become president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. The former budget director, who landed on a high-level shelf at the White House after Nixon's July 1 reshuffling of the presidential staff command, had the President's promise of a Cabinet job in January.

But Mayo, an economist and former banker as well as a 20-year veteran of public service in the Treasury and Budget Bureau, chose instead one of the hot spots of the financial world. In his new post Mayo will direct the second largest of the 12 Federal Reserve banks and will return to Chicago, where he formerly was vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. Secretary of the Treasury David Kennedy was board chairman of the same bank.

MAYO ANTHONY

STRICKEN

John Anthony, who gave advice to America's troubled for more than 20 years as radio's "Mr. Anthony," died late Thursday night after collapsing in the Sheraton Place Hotel in San Francisco. He was 68. Death was attributed to a heart attack. Anthony earlier in the evening had complained of chest pains and was stricken while dining.

Anthony began his radio advice in 1930 in New York and went on a national network in 1935. He was finally taken off the air in 1953. He was heard by an estimated 20 million listeners and his program was carried by 700 radio stations.

KATHERINE HUPPE
Outspoken Beauty

Title Returned for Freedom

Katherine Huppe of Helena, Mont., resigned her title as Miss Montana Friday citing restrictions on what she can say and do about politics and other current events. Miss Huppe, 18, said that after winning the state title June 13 she signed a contract stating Miss Montana cannot write anything that is not approved by the sponsoring Billings Jaycees and cannot campaign for any political candidate or cause.

"They can't have a girl who is going to do anything controversial. I'm not a middle of the road person and I'm not willing to become a middle of the road person," said Miss Huppe.

She said she also participated in antiwar demonstrations last year and added, "If there were demonstrations next year, I would participate, because that's something I really believe in. I told them (pageant officials) I would put my beliefs above the pageant." The beauty queen said she also had been an editor of a "free press" newspaper, "The Paper Tiger," designed to provide a free forum for high school students.

Of her brief reign, Miss Huppe said, "It was an experience. I don't want to say what kind of experience because I'm not sure yet."

ICE MYSTERY

A civilian scientist has been shot and killed under unknown conditions while working on a Navy research ice station floating in the Arctic Ocean, the Defense Department said Friday.

Bennie Lightsey of Louisville, Ky., was fatally wounded Thursday but word of the shooting was not received until the ice station made radio contact with the Alaskan mainland Friday morning.

"Circumstances surrounding the incident are unclear since the only person apparently present at the time of the incident is in a state of shock and is heavily sedated," a Defense Department spokesman said.

TRAFFIC HAZARD

Pennsylvania State Police said Friday that the driver of a bus that crashed near Allentown Wednesday killing seven children had a record of convictions for traffic accidents in New Jersey and had had his license suspended five times.

Trooper James Hughes of the accident investigation division said he talked to authorities in Trenton, N.J., and verified the driver's identity as Hubert Daye, 44, of Montclair, N.J. The motor vehicles department in Trenton said Daye's license had been subject to suspension in April.

COMBINATION

Chief Justice Warren Burger said Friday night in Birmingham, Ala., that in order for this nation to continue it must have "ordered liberty—it can't be all law and it can't be all liberty, but must have the two combined." Burger paid tribute to Justice Hugo Black of Birmingham, who has been on the high court for 33 years, at a dinner of the Alabama Bar Association.

WRAP-UP

The new Pacific Marine commander predicts the Vietnam war will end within two years, the approximate end of his tenure. "We can wrap up the war — as we know it today — within two years," said Lt. Gen. William Jones, who assumed command of the Pacific Marine Force on June 30. He returned to Honolulu from his first trip to South Vietnam in that capacity Thursday.

Navy to Seek Bids on $9-Million L.B. Shipyard Projects

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Naval and congressional approval has been received for 26 construction projects in California, including three facilities at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, it was announced in Washington Friday.

The Navy will seek bids in January, 1971, for the construction of an electronic weapons systems building section, a central boiler plant and a sewage treatment plant, to cost an estimated $9.2 million, said Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach.

Work on the weapons systems building's second of three phases is expected to cost about $7.1 million, Hosmer said.

The entire weapons systems building project was proposed more than a year ago, a spokesman at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard said, but had been under "a hold situation" for reassessment by Naval authorities and legislators.

Similar projects "all around the country" were reevaluated to determine their necessity in a period of "tight money," the spokesman added.

He explained that the projects had not been delayed overlong, however, since the first phase of the weapons systems building is only now nearing completion and not yet occupied.

"Actually, the timing isn't too bad at all," he said. Cost for the first phase of the building was given at "between $6-$7 million."

The authorization will create no new jobs at the shipyard, he said, because all construction work will be contracted for with private companies.

A request for an additional $1.2 million to replace the shipyard's cafeteria, destroyed by fire April 21, is now before a congressional appropriations committee, the spokesman said.

'ACID BATH' CASE

testimony Wallace's courtroom deportment had been affable. His smiling face had been in sharp contrast to the brooding demeanor of Samson.

But all that changed late Friday afternoon when Mrs. Powell took the stand. After a faltering start in which the clerk twice had to repeat the oath to the witness, Mrs. Powell sobbed when Deputy Dist. Atty. Marvin Kaye asked her where she lived.

"What the . . . is going on here?" Wallace shouted. "What are you trying to do to her?"

JUDGE TOBEY ordered Wallace to be silent and to speak only through his attorney. The judge called a recess to permit Mrs. Powell to regain her composure. Then the questioning resumed.

Kaye asked the witness if she had visited Wallace in Los Angeles County Jail June 23 or 24. No answer. The question was restated, and Mrs. Powell responded with a tremulous "Yes."

Wallace jumped to his feet, holding the heavy ash tray in his hand. Shouting obscenities, he drew back his arm, aiming the ash-tray at Kaye.

The court bailiff and four other officers, including two sheriff's deputies who had testified in the hearing, subdued the enraged defendant. Tobey ordered Wallace handcuffed and shackled. He also ordered two noisy women out of the courtroom before calling another recess.

After the recess, Wallace again interrupted questioning of Mrs. Powell to tell her: "It's alright. You can go ahead and testify. I'll still love you like sister."

MRS. POWELL, still speaking in a nervous voice, said she had visited Wallace at County Jail where he had told her that Summers had been mis-treating a girl named Vicki, "giving her dope." The questioning went like this:

Kaye — Did he tell you Summers was no good and he was glad he was dead?

Mrs. Powell — Something like that.

Kaye — What were his exact words?

Mrs. Powell — It's hard to recall exactly. (Pause). Something like he was glad he was dead and he wouldn't be giving her any more dope.

Kaye also asked Mrs. Powell to show "a gesture" Wallace made to her — indicating Summers' fate — through the glass visiting booth at County Jail. After hesitating, she clenched both fists together, raised them above her head and made a hard, downward, chopping motion with them.

MRS. POWELL said that Wallace cried openly during one period of the meeting in the jail. The suspect could have missed seeing her emotion; he sat throughout most of her testimony with his manacled fists clenched in front of his eyes.

Earlier in Friday's testimony a sheriff's deputy admitted that he had no search warrant to enter Summers' residence at 8334 Wilburn St., but said his instructions on his car radio advised him of "suspicious circumstances, possible burglars there now, man with a gun."

The same deputy told of participating in the arrest of a juvenile girl at the same address two months earlier on charges of violating probation.

Others testifying included Dr. David M. Katsuyama, deputy medical examiner and a forensic pathologist for the coroner's office, who told of draining the bathtub at the house of the sulphuric acid solution and finding a tooth with a filling at the bottom of the tub.

NARROWLY MISSED by volley of police bullets, tiny Anabelle Castaneda is held by her father, Simon, as mother stands by in their Los Angeles apartment. Holes in the wall were made by bullets that hit just above the child's crib. Police, firing into an adjoining apartment killed two unarmed Mexican nationals and wounded a third.

$265,000 Teen Devil Worshipers Settles L.B. Suit

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Hugo C. Hoffman, a 58-year-old Long Beach carpenter, has settled a personal injury suit out of court for $265,000, this newspaper learned Friday.

The opposing parties in the suit are The Douglas Oil Company and Harry E. Morris Jr., the firm's sales manager, who lives in Huntington Beach and has offices in Paramount.

Hoffman's case was in mid-trial in Superior Court in Long Beach when a recess was called Wednesday. The settlement is reported to have been reached Friday morning.

PETITIONS show Hoffman was injured in a two-car collision on Seventh Street near Santiago Avenue in October 1966.

Hoffman, who lives at 765 Freeman Ave., was a passenger in a car being driven by his son, John. Morris was driving home from an office party in an automobile belonging to the oil company.

Ransom C. Samuelson, Hoffman's attorney, said the impending testimony of a physician, showing his client suffered not only bodily injury but damage to his brain and vascular system, was probably the decisive factor in the settlement.

Oil Slick Threatens Coastline

A large oil slick sighted off San Clemente Island has moved to a position 18 miles southwest of Dana Point and may pose a threat to nearby beaches, the Coast Guard said Friday.

The four-mile long slick was first sighted Thursday by a Swedish freighter and it has since traveled eight miles northeast toward the coast, officials said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said an aerial survey showed the gooey patch was widening into heavier clots in sections. Source of the oil has not yet been determined, he said.

Reiner said the conflict between himself and Miss Van Houten began at "the first moment I stood up to speak in open court."

At that time Miss Van Houten also stood up, and attempted to fire Reiner. Hughes, after replacing Reiner, said he is "completely familiar with the case" and will not ask for a continuance, which usually is granted to new attorneys in a trial. He estimated it would take another week before the six alternate jurors needed in the trial can be selected and seated with the regular, 12-member panel.

Five alternate jurors — out of 46 called — had been tentatively seated by the time court adjourned at 4 p.m. Friday

At least three of the alternates may be challenged by prosecutors when court resumes at 9 a.m. Monday, it was learned.

Activities of the devil worshipers, said he will plead Hurd insane.

Authorities are seeking to extradite Christopher (Gypsy) Gibboney, 16, from Portland, Ore., where he has been held on the basis of an Orange County arrest warrant charging him with murder.

CHIEF Robitaille, who disclosed the reports to police of devil worshiping and "witchcraft" in mountain caves above O'Neill Park in the east Orange County Trabuco Oaks area, said he'd been informed of female hippies wearing human "fingerbones as bracelets."

"We now hear that witchcraft rituals with candles, black goats, narcotics and sex perversions are being held in" the hills above the park, he said.

Officials at the drug prevention center of Anaheim's Melodyland Christian Church report receiving telephone calls several times a day from youths on drugs who have witnessed "witchcraft rituals."

Newport Bay Struck From Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly Friday voted to remove Upper Newport Bay in Orange County from legislation attempting to determine what effect several state projects will have on the environment.

Assemblyman Robert E. B. Adams, R-Newport Beach, asked the House to eliminate Upper Newport Bay from the resolution by Assemblyman George W. Milias, R-Gilroy.

The Milias resolution requests state agencies involved in the projects to submit the environmental impact reports to the Legislature.

The upper Newport Bay land exchange between Orange County and the Irvine Company, which was approved by the State Lands Commission, was stricken from the resolution on a 20-13 vote.

Projects remaining in the measure are the peripheral canal portion of the state water project, construction of a freeway over Goleta Slough in Santa Barbara County and the Tijuana River estuary development.

The Assembly plans a vote on the remainder of the measure next week.

Griffith Park Blaze Held to 8 Acres

Nine Los Angeles city fire units assisted by three helicopters contained a brush fire in Griffith Park Thursday to eight acres.

There were no injuries, and no structures were involved, officials said.

Pitchess Criticizes Sheriff Aid Pact, Cites Lack of Unity

A report by Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess criticizing the law enforcement mutual aid pact with other Southern California counties was released Friday by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The report warned against the use of local sheriff's department personnel to aid nearby counties in anything other than "various forms of war and natural disasters."

Hahn called for the study last June 16 following criticism of the conduct of local sheriff's deputies called to Santa Barbara to aid in quelling a student disturbance at Isla Vista.

Pitchess said that when the pacts were first drawn up some years ago "none of us could have foreseen the need for this same aid in situations where continuing civil disobedience was to become a fact of our daily existence."

He said that although his department was "fully prepared" to aid other agencies in Los Angeles County, "we believe that when an entire county cannot control a situation with the forces and equipment of that county . . . the National Guard must be called in at once."

During the past year and a half, Pitchess said, his department supplied deputies three times and equipment and specialized personnel on several other occasions.

Some of the problems arising from the mutual aid pact, the sheriff said, included:

—A lack of unity of command and coordination.

—"Questionable liability" to Los Angeles County and its employees.

—A depletion of law enforcement personnel within Los Angeles County.

—A lack of uniformity in equipment, training and policy among different law enforcement agencies.

—Lack of necessary support personnel and equipment, such as booking and jailing facilities.

"Much of the adverse publicity (about the Isla Vista disturbance) centered on in-custody treatment, yet we had nothing to do with it, and no control over it," Pitchess said.

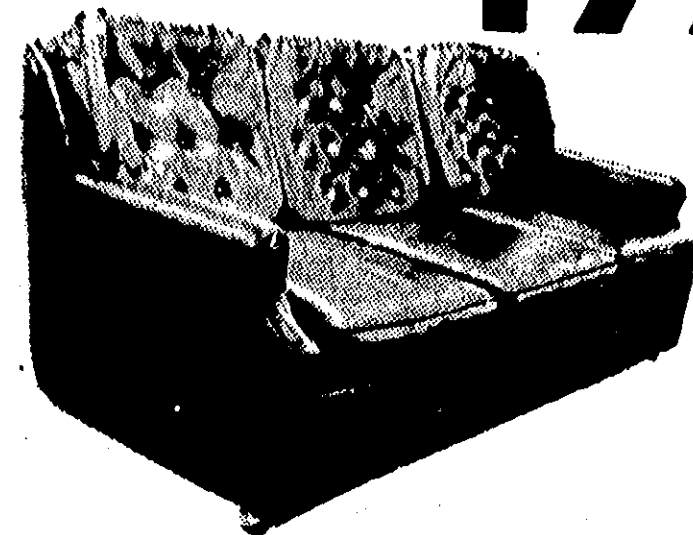

The sheriff said his department's position was being presented to "appropriate state officials as a model to consider for adoption throughout the state."

Hahn, in releasing the sheriff's report, said each county should provide the men to control disturbances in their jurisdiction "and not depend on manpower of Los Angeles."

Selection of alternate jurors in the Tate-LaBianca murder trial bogged down Friday afternoon, and, in a surprise move, the attorney for one of Charles Manson's female co-defendants was fired.

Veteran lawyer Ira Reiner was discharged by Leslie Van Houten, who said she wanted 35-year-old Ronald Hughes to represent her.

Reiner's acquittal record has been outstanding since he left the Los Angeles city attorney's Office for private practice three years ago.

The bearded Hughes is a legal novice, never having tried a case since passing his State Bar exam last year. He was one of Manson's attorneys for a brief period before the one-time cult leader fired him, however.

Hughes told newsmen Miss Van Houten sent him a letter asking him to represent her.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Charles Older approved the substitution of attorneys during a brief meeting with the lawyers in his chambers. Hughes immediately occupied Reiner's chair at defense table after the meeting with the judge.

"Miss Van Houten, during the course of the trial, did not wish me to exercise challenges to jurors," said Reiner. "She wanted me to remain mute during the trial and I could not accept those instructions."

Reiner said the conflict between himself and Miss Van Houten began at "the first moment I stood up to speak in open court."

At that time Miss Van Houten also stood up, and attempted to fire Reiner.

Hughes, after replacing Reiner, said he is "completely familiar with the STUDENT BODY CHIEF CHEATED

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —The newly-elected student body president at the University of California's Berkeley campus said Friday he had another student take a French examination for him.

"There was no excuse for what I did," said Leigh Steinberg, 21, a senior from Los Angeles.

He said he volunteered information about the April violation to UC officials three weeks ago.

Steinberg has been notified that he must appear before a student conduct committee on a date as yet unknown.

"Whether I can take office as president in the fall, or even enter law school then, will depend on what the committee decides," he told newsmen.

"I made a mistake. I was snowed under with extra-curricular activities but that's no excuse."

DETECTIVES WAIT

Slashed Girl Key to Chicago Killer

CHICAGO (AP) — Police pinned their hopes for the capture of a hotel-prowling slayer Friday on the survival of a California girl whose throat was cut by an assailant who slashed her roommate to death.

"We have practically nothing to go on," said Chief of Detectives Michael J. Spiotto, "and we are awaiting the recovery of Miss Ranko Yamada."

Miss Yamada, 17, shared a convention hotel room with Miss Evelyn Okubo, 18, who was slain.

DETECTIVES maintained a vigil near the hospital room of Miss Yamada, who underwent emergency surgery. She was found nude and bleeding from a severe throat gash Thursday night in her room in the Palmer House Hotel. Her condition was described as guarded.

A few feet away, in a bathtub containing a small amount of water, was the body of Miss Okubo. Her hands and feet were tied with a cord. Her throat was cut and she was stabbed in the abdomen.

Police said she had been raped.

Both from Stockton, the girls were attending the Japanese-American Citizens League convention at the hotel.

Miss Okubo was to enter California State College at Long Beach in September.

After surgery was performed on Miss Yamada she was questioned by detectives.

Sgt. Rudy Nimocks said that during the questioning she wrote notes describing her assailant as "a Negro, a black man, and young."

NIMOCKS said the girl was unable to give a detailed account of what had happened because she was under heavy sedation.

Earlier notes written by Miss Yamada for police-men were described by Cmdr. Francis J. Flanagan as "not particularly significant."

"We're not paying much attention to them," he said. "The girl is going to live and we'll question her later."

Spiotto said one object of value was taken from the room but he did not elaborate. He also said that a hunting knife in a paper bag was found wedged between an ice-making machine and a wall near the slaying scene.

He said the knife and fingerprints lifted from the disarrayed room were sent to the police laboratory.

Doctors at Henrotin Hospital said, "The wounds were too deep and too clean to have been made with a knife, no matter how sharply it was honed."

ROYAL PAIR ON TOUR

royal visitors a mirror that "Dolly Madison rescued from the White House which some of your ancestors were burning up," and House Speaker John McCormack tried to explain that Congress was in the throes of reorganization.

"Reorganizing what?" Charles asked.

"Just reorganizing Congress," said McCormack, somewhat taken aback.

On the Senate floor, Charles looked up and saw reporters gawking down from the press gallery.

"You have a hard job, I must say, but today you have an easy job," he told them. "You can't hear what I'm saying."

Later, at the Smithsonian Institution's air and space museum, the couple met astronauts Neil Armstrong and Frank Borman and inspected the space suit of the type Armstrong wore on the moon.

The sightseers boarded the presidential yacht Sequoia for a leisurely cruise down the Potomac River to Mount Vernon, with a luncheon of chicken and lobster salad, asparagus and tomato aspic and choice of a California wine or iced tea.

As the yacht sailed away from the pier, a Britisher in the party noted that his native flag was flying upsidown. The crew quickly lowered the Union Jack and raised it properly.

Nineteen-year-old Anne, who seemed until now to have been unduly reserved almost to the point of being dour, apparently decided that the Sequoia's speed of nine knots was a bit slow.

She suddenly boarded one of the two escorting Coast Guard security speedboats with her lady-in-waiting, Mary Dawnay.

and spent about 10 minutes dashing at high speed over the waters of the Potomac to the delight of those on a flotilla of sailboats and other river craft.

At Mount Vernon, Charles and Anne were given a scrapbook noting the history of royal British visits to Washington's historic home since 1880, when another Prince of Wales toured the grounds.

A tea at the British Embassy preceded the White House dinner-dance, at which two rock bands were performing.

More than 8,000 small white lights glittered on the White House south lawn for the party. The dress was formal but the music was hard rock.

Charles broke the ice by asking Tricia Nixon for the first dance. David Eisenhower followed by escorting Anne to the dance floor which soon filled with gyrating young couples.

Like old-fashioned chaperones, the President and Mrs. Nixon discreetly watched the festivities from the Truman balcony.

The only disruption in the evening came from a group of young American Indians who harassed arriving guests. They said the party was "lily white" and no Indians had been invited.

Earlier in the evening, the prince and princess slipped across Pennsylvania Avenue to Lafayette Park where the Washington National Symphony was playing an outdoor concert. The orchestra played "Pomp and Circumstance" and the young couple received an enthusiastic welcome from the audience.

Simon Charges Regents With Bias for Irvine Co.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regent Norton Simon charged Friday that unnamed fellow regents are improperly concealing business relationships with the Irvine Co.

The company is developing a community adjacent to the UC Irvine campus through an agreement with regents.

SIMON told a news conference the company is planning to ask for a change in the agreement to boost the community's population ceiling from 100,000 to more than 400,000.

That would mean more money for the company, Simon said, but would create a "potential Isla Vista or Telegraph Avenue."

Isla Vista is the student community near the Santa Barbara campus that erupted into violence last May. Telegraph Avenue is a hippie-laden street leading to the UC Berkeley campus.

SIMON refused to name which regents he was discussing but said they are "very interested in things kind of going the way the Irvine Co. wants."

Quizzed later by reporters, regents chairman William French Smith said his Los Angeles law firm, Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher, represents the Irvine Co.

Smith said he has refrained from voting or participating in discussions relating to the company.

Reagan Raps UC Officials for Failing to Solve Unrest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan said Friday he thinks the public is getting increasingly impatient with violent student outbreaks and political activism on University of California campuses.

He said university officials still have not come to grips with the problem effectively.

"I don't think the people will stand still for another several years like we've had," Reagan told a news conference after adjournment of a UC regents meeting.

"The administration has not faced up to the solutions it must find to handle the problems," Reagan added.

REPLYING to Reagan, UC President Charles Hitch said, "We've faced up to lots of problems. I hope we've found a few solutions."

Hitch told his own news conference earlier one evidence of forthcoming solutions was his plan, unveiled Thursday, for assuming tighter control over faculty discipline and how classes are taught.

Earlier, the outgoing chancellor of the UC San Diego campus said meetings of the university were becoming "theatrical affairs" amid the glare of television nights.

"Intensive coverage by the news media and attendance by major political figures are turning the meetings into theatrical affairs," Chancellor William J. McGill told regents in a farewell talk.

HE LEAVES the 5,000-student San Diego campus Sept. 1 to assume the presidency of Columbia University.

Regents appointed Herbert P. York, dean of graduate studies at San Diego and professor of physics, as acting chancellor. York was San Diego's first chancellor but later returned to teaching.

UC Oil Deal Defended by Pauley

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regent Edwin W. Pauley Friday defended a controversial business deal involving his oil company and a non-profit university corporation.

Pauley used the corporation as a go-between to obtain a $5.8 million loan from the First National Bank of Chicago.

The corporation arranged for the loan at 6 1/2 per cent interest and passed the money on to Pauley Petroleum, charging 6 1/2 per cent interest.

The corporation received the difference in the interest rates and gave that money to the university.

"The whole purpose of this transaction was to make a gift of $30,000 to the university," Pauley said in a prepared statement.

McGill predicted that "fragmentation and deterioration" of traditional relations between the regents, university administration and faculty would produce growing unionization among faculty members "at a very rapid pace."

Regents adopted a resolution threatening to cut off funds to student newspapers unless they submit outlines of policies and procedures for consideration by regents at their January meeting.

"REGENTS deplore the frequent use of campus student newspapers as instruments of socio-political advocacy and for the dissemination of lewd and obscene articles and photographs," said the resolution from regent John E. Canaday.

The regents also adopted a resolution urging the Legislature to restore 5 per cent pay hikes for university faculty.

Five per cent pay raises for state university and college faculty members were included in Reagan's proposed budget, but were chopped out by an Assembly-Senate conference committee. Reagan was pessimistic about the chances for restoration.

Witness Pressuring Charged

Senate Prober Says Migrants' Complaints Hushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate investigator said Friday that prospective witnesses had been pressured into not testifying about what a team of doctors called deliberate degradation of migrant workers.

Boren Chertkov, counsel to the migrant labor subcommittee headed by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said "personal threats, harassment, intimidation" had been used against witnesses, whom he declined to name on grounds they would be in danger.

Nevertheless, Chertkov said the subcommittee would seek next week to "name names" of agencies officials and businesses responsible for conditions Mondale described last week as America's version of the "tiger cages" of South Vietnam's Con Son prison.

Chertkov, at a briefing in Mondale's office, said the inquiry would try to find "who are the oppressors, who are the exploiters, who is responsible." He also released preliminary reports of a team of doctors scheduled to testify about migrants at the hearings opening Monday. They described dangerous uses of pesticides, primitive or nonexistent sanitary facilities, high infant mortality rates, housing comparable to "slave quarters" and substandard medical care.

THE TEAM, sponsored by the New York Field Foundation, visited Texas and Florida earlier this year. They said the conditions they found were deliberate.

"We believe the deplorable state of health and welfare of the migrant farm workers to be consciously determined by those who use them," the report said. "We find the lives of hundreds of thousands of our fellow citizens manipulated and managed in such a way as to reduce them to sub-human status."

Some excerpts from the report:

— Texas: "One doctor said these were the worst conditions he had ever seen. . . . He had seen areas almost as bad in South America but none as pathetic as these."

— Texas: "Less than 1 per cent of the people examined had any dental care."

— Florida: "One camp we visited was, I am certain, the closest equivalent to slave quarters that could exist in what we consider to be a free society."

— Florida: "The absence of toilet facilities on many farms necessitated depositing human waste in the fields being picked."

— Florida: "I saw and photographed men on spraying rigs without any protective clothing or masks spraying parathion on a windy day 50 feet from children playing in the yard."

In Austin, Tex., Conley C. Kemper, coordinator of migrant labor on the state's Good Neighbor Commission, denied the doctors' report saying, "It's definitely exaggerated."

"We know there is suffering. We know there are disadvantaged people," Kemper said. "Unfortunately we got started late. We are trying to make up for lost time."

SPIRO AGNEW DEMONSTRATES HEAD-CRACKING GOLF FORM TV Host Arnold Palmer Looks Carefully Noncommittal on 'Tonight' Show

STARS ON 'TONIGHT' SHOW

Agnew Wisecracks, Spoofs His Golf, Tennis Mayhem

By H. D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I like to get out and play golf and tennis," said Spiro T. Agnew. "It gives me a chance to apologize."

Grinning and wisecracking about his famous slips on links and court, the vice president of the United States made bantering small talk with golfer Arnold Palmer Friday as a guest on the NBC Tonight Show.

Agnew walked onto the stage at an afternoon taping of the show, which is aired late at night, carrying a tennis racquet and two golf clubs. The self-ridicule reference was to his pinging the neck of golf pro Doug Sanders with a shot in the Bob Hope Classic and his hitting his own partner, Joseph Blatchford, with a serve in a tennis doubles match.

Palmer was acting as substitute host on the show, which usually is run by Johnny Carson.

BEFORE Agnew came on, Palmer noted that his co-host, Ed McMahon, was standing aside "just a shank away" and then said of his guest, "you know, he shanks once in a while too."

"I brought my weapons with me," Agnew said as he walked on, "and that's no joke as far as I'm concerned."

Then he got in a jolt in what some consider his running bicker with certain newspapers and newscasters.

"I came through the lobby just now, and I said: 'Where's the greenhouse?' They said: 'We don't have any greenhouse at NBC.' And I said: 'I thought any place where Chet Huntley walked there'd be something growing."

HUNTLEY, retiring soon from NBC's Huntley-Brinkley Report, said in a recent interview in Life magazine that he resented being lumped in by Agnew with "effete intellectuals," because "I've had more cow manure on my boots than he ever thought about."

As for President Nixon and golf he said: "The President doesn't kid me. He just keeps a respectful distance."

Palmer showed a series of pictures of the vice

Agnew Can Broadcast For a Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio commentator Paul Harvey said Friday Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has agreed to take his job for a day, in partial fulfillment of an Agnew ambition.

The vice president said in an Associated Press interview that after leaving political office, he might like to become a commentator or a columnist — entering a field whose current practitioners he has criticized.

Harvey said in a Monday broadcast he would be willing to turn his job over to Agnew for a week. The Chicago-based commentator followed up with a telephone call to Agnew's office, saying the offer was in earnest.

Friday, he said Agnew had agreed to spend a day as a commentator.

president and himself at golf in Florida: "Here we're teeing up — watching the Secret Service run for cover. . . . Here he looks like he has a pretty good stance — of course, I'm well out of the way. . . . Here he's bending over the water and up popped a young lady a little later."

"She had on a skin diving outfit and had been looking for lost balls. She had found a ball with Spiro T. Agnew on it."

"I've been waiting for you to say something about my watch, Arnold," Agnew put in. "The other night I saw a Mickey Mouse cartoon on NBC, and I'm here to ask for equal time."

THE REFERENCE was to Agnew's giving $25,000 to charities in royalties from watches and T-shirts bearing amiable caricatures of him. The donors were the manufacturers. Palmer showed a picture of the watch and held up one of the T-shirts.

"I'm not marketing these, really," Agnew said. "It's unusual to see promotion like this. I thought it would be a good idea to use some of these things for charity, and I asked the manufacturers."

Asked what he thought sport does for youth, he said: "I don't think there is anything better as an influence. It teaches discipline. And you get to meet people from different walks of life. . . . You learn how to get along with people."

To Rod Laver, the tennis pro who also was a guest, Agnew suggested tennis needed "a little more of that golf has developed and pointed out Palmer has several such money makers."

Scranton Says War, Agnew Could Be Rapped by Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman William W. Scranton said Friday the Campus Unrest Commission would not hesitate to recommend that President Nixon end the Vietnam war and silence the vice president if it felt either action would bring campus peace this fall.

"Certainly, I think it is within our purview and our right, if we think action to end the war would alleviate campus unrest, we should and we would recommend that," the former Republican governor from Pennsylvania told a news conference.

BUT HE pointed out "there are other matters than campus unrest that would enter into the President's determination to end the war."

Scranton was also asked if the commission would recommend that President Nixon "tell Agnew to lower his voice," since many of the commission's first witnesses have been critical of the vice president's comments.

"Do I think this would be in order as a recommendation if we wanted to recommend it?" Scranton said. "Yes."

"Frankly," though he added, "I don't think that until the commission finishes its work I should go around telling people how to act."

SCRANTON joined with two other commissioners at the news conference in criticizing testimony of Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief of the National Guard Bureau here, for being less than direct in his answers when he appeared Friday, the third day of commission hearings.

Commissioner James Ahern, police chief of New Haven, Conn., was more specific. He said he thought the "least worthwhile" testimony thus far had come from those in "officialdom."

"There has been a reluctance to level with the commission, a defensiveness on the part of those in bureaucratic offices. They have been vague and almost shifty to the point where questions are not answered at all," he said.

AHERN later clarified that he was talking specifically about the Balding National Guard chief, who told the commission that while "deadly force should be used only as a last emergency" in campus violence, guardsmen should be allowed live ammunition to protect their lives and the lives of others.

Revis O. Ortiqne, one of the four Negro commissioners and a New Orleans lawyer, took offense that Wilson had brought with him to the hearing an array of "weapons" he said had been hurled at national guardsmen on civil disorders duty, both on campuses and in the cities.

Murphy Farm Bill Gains One Step

By LOU CANNON From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—A Senate subcommittee Friday approved legislation by Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., that would permit limited agricultural trade unionism while prohibiting harvest time strikes and consumer boycotts.

He said however it was probably too late in the congressional session to win approval of the bill by the full Senate Agriculture Committee. He predicted that this would occur in the next session of Congress.

The Murphy bill, though endorsed by a wide spectrum of California farm groups, has come under attack from farmers who want no union at all and from Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, which opposes the boycott and harvest strike provisions.

In a statement after the subcommittee had approved his bill, Murphy rapped the Chavez-led union for "coercive efforts" aimed at signing up table grape growers in California.

"Now pressure has moved to other commodities including plums, melons, peaches and a number of other foods," Murphy said.

In an interview Murphy hinted that Chavez, whose union has been signing up table grape growers in California at a rapid pace, was forcing growers to sign by economic pressure.

"Either you sign or your contract doesn't get to market," Murphy said. "What kind of unionization is that?"

Murphy maintains that his bill is fair to trade unions despite the criticisms it has received from Chavez and other union leaders.

Vermont Hunts Fish Poisoning

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — A three-member team from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare arrived in Vermont Friday to assist in determining the extent of a mercury water contamination crisis which has resulted in the banning of commercially caught fish in the state.

The team's arrival came less than 24 hours after the Vermont health board ordered the statewide ban against the sale of commercially caught fish.

Civil and military affairs secretary Frederick Reed, heading up a special state task force investigating the mercury problem, said that Floyd Taylor, regional director for the Water Hygiene Bureau, and two technicians will conduct a two-month study of state water supplies.

Vermont began testing for mercury after alarmed Canadian officials last month reported the discovery of higher than safe levels of the element in fish in northern Lake Champlain.

State testing uncovered mercury contaminated fish in a number of other lakes, ponds and rivers.

Efforts to pinpoint sources of mercury discharges through preliminary tests indicated Burlington's three sewage treatment plants were discharging large amounts of mercury, officials said.

Lush Island Sold Despite Ecologists

HIGH POINT, N.C. (UPI) — Lush Bald Head Island, largest uninhabited island remaining on the Atlantic Coast, Friday was sold to be developed as a residential-resort area, despite objections from state officials and ecologists.

Carolina Cape Fear Corp. president W. H. Henderson of High Point announced the purchase from Charlotte businessman Frank Sherill in a one-paragraph statement and was unavailable for further comment.

The island of about 12,000 acres — only 3,000 acres of which are above the water line at high tide — teems with sea birds, sea turtles, otter, mink and alligators.

Gov. Bob Scott, who wanted the island to become state property to protect its ecology, expressed disappointment.

WILLIAM WENGERT, 10, SURVEYS BALTIMORE HARBOR MESS Spilled Oil Has Killed Numerous Ducks, Fouled Thousands of Boat Hulls —AP Wirephoto

67,200 Gallons of Crude Foul Baltimore's Harbor

BAR HARBOR, Md. (AP) — "That darn black stuff. You can't touch anything without getting it on you," is what one resident of this Anne Arundel County beach area says of oil from a spill some 15 miles up-river in Baltimore.

Mrs. Grace Follin's comment Friday was typical of what the residents along Patapsco River beaches thought of a 67,200 gallon spill in Baltimore Harbor at the Humble Oil Co. Terminal.

Bar Harbor is one of the waterfront communities hit by the tide-carried oil.

Workmen have been busy since Monday, cleaning beaches and collecting oil-soaked absorbents they spread on the water. Dozens of pleasure boats still have to be pulled from the water and cleaned of oil stains.

The spill occurred Sunday apparently when oil being pumped into a barge wasn't stopped when the vessel was full.

The spill was the second Baltimore Harbor water pollution mishap in a week. First, 1,200 tons of lye were pumped from a ship into a barge and somehow, it still is under investigation, went into the water.

By Friday, water enthusiasts were skiing at Riviera Beach several miles to the north of Bar Harbor.

Oil deposits covered some beaches on the south side of coves, while the northern shores remained virtually oil-free.

The attendant at Ft. Smallwood Beach, Everett Ardis, said the oil filled the coves but never made it into Chesapeake Bay, into which the Patapsco flows.

At Maryland Yacht Club near Bar Harbor, a spokesman said the oil came and went with the tides, posing no serious problem.

Humble Oil has said it would pay the cost of the cleanup which one spokesman estimated at "near $50,000," although some residents have said that seemed low.

C. F. Wedeman, a Bar Harbor resident who has two boats with oil rings around the waterline said the spill would have no effect on hard shell crabs because the oil did not sink to the bottom where the crabs are.

Judge Imposes $10,000 Fine in Pollution Trial

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge imposed a $10,000 fine Friday for oil pollution of water against Bayonne Industries of Bayonne.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Jonathan Goldstein said the fine resulted from a plea of guilty by the firm to 10 counts of an 18-count indictment based on an 1888 federal law against oil discharge into New York Harbor and its tributary waters.

U.S. Atty. Frederick B. Lacey said it was the "largest single fine ever imposed by a federal court in the water pollution area."

Goldstein said the indictment charged the firm with "unlawful discharge and deposit into the waters" of Kill Van Kull, a New York Harbor tributary. The offenses, Goldstein said, all involved oil refuse and occurred between June 1966 and February 1969.

The fine was imposed by U.S. Dist. Court Judge James A. Coolahan.

INDUSTRY AND ENVIRONMENT Hickel Stresses Coexistence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel said Friday the growing drive to clean up the environment does not have to become a "dog-eat-dog struggle between industry and conservation."

"Let's find new ways, better ways of doing business so that our industries can prosper and our environment flourish at the same time," Hickel told the National Petroleum Council.

"The right to produce is not the right to pollute," he cautioned the oil men who serve as advisers to the Interior Department on problems and policies in the petroleum industry.

He said antipollution laws "must be universal" and violators will be prosecuted.

"AMERICA must prove to itself as well as to others world-wide that it has the ability to clean up the garbage it has left in its wake."

But Hickel said this does not mean that growth of industry and development of the nation's resources must be stifled. He pointed to three examples of how the nation must permit development of its resources but still protect the environment. His examples included the offshore oil in the Santa Barbara Channel, the Trans-Alaska pipeline and the huge deposits of oil shale in the rocky Mountain area.

Hickel noted that President Nixon had asked Congress to buy back some of the leases off Santa Barbara where there was danger of further leaks causing pollution. But at the same time, he said, development would continue at other areas of the channel under strict precautions to lessen the danger of pollution.

AS FOR THE controversial Trans-Alaska pipeline, he said there is "no question in my mind" that he eventually would permit its construction to transport oil from the newly discovered North Slope fields. But he said he would approve it only after being satisfied "that the line can be built safely and without damage to the terrain and ecology of the area."

The oil shale deposits in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming are the largest hydrocarbon deposits in the world and with proper development could make the U.S. self sufficient in oil and gas for generations, Hickel said.

But he said industry would have to solve the problems of pollution before approval was given to go ahead with the oil shale development. Particularly difficult, he said, is what to do with the two tons of rock that has to be crushed for every barrel of oil produced.

Corporate World Admits It Has Drug Problem

Addiction Threatens to Triple in Severity In '70

NEW YORK (UPI)—Drug addiction among employees, once a taboo subject, has been discussed openly in recent weeks by a few major companies worried about its $5 billion annual drain on the national economy.

"Some of our people are using abusive drugs," said a New York spokesman. "We recently found one with 13 glassine packets of heroin on him."

"Last year we turned away about 78 job seekers because of addiction, almost twice as many as in 1968," a spokesman for another firm revealed.

"We have a drug problem," said a Metropolitan Life Insurance Company executive.

A 64-page report released July 6 reveals frightening details of the employee-addict problem. It surfaced in 1968 and threatens to triple in severity this year because of the many addicts coming out of Vietnam and schools.

Names are not used in the report but it involves 80 large New York companies which were interviewed extensively or answered detailed questionnaires prepared by Carol Kurtis, editor at the Research Institute of America.

Only five of the companies reported no drug problem on company premises. A public utility company found an employee dead in the washroom, the needle still sticking in his arm. Another told how a mail boy delivered packets of marijuana in small company envelopes during the morning delivery of inter-office memos.

An engineer with the company, not the office boy, was the guilty pusher.

All of the companies agreed the expense was staggering. One spent $75,000 last year just to replace addicts who were fired.

Absenteeism, poor work efficiency, higher insurance rates and tax increases to cover the cost of addict centers and services also hurt the businessman. The amount of stealing — on and off the job — to support the habit is a major problem.

To support a $30 a day heroin habit, the addict must steal about $50,000 in goods per year. A fence gives him about 20 per cent of the true value, and the habit costs about $11,000 per year.

ONE MANHATTAN BANK said all the persons apprehended in crimes against its bank in the last six months were drug addicts. Another company noted a 100 per cent increase in internal stealing since 1968.

Among sensitive companies such as airlines, banks and manufacturers using dangerous machinery the solution involves intensive screening, on-job detection and termination. Among utilities which draw heavily from the young of minority groups, where addiction is most prevalent, there is more emphasis on rehabilitation.

"But it's a difficult job," said Dr. S. C. Franco, vice president at Con Edison. "Unlike alcoholism, drug addiction spreads to other employees and the rate of rehabilitation is very low."

Drugs are not the exclusive problem of blue collar or minority group workers.

One large New York advertising agency reported finding three young executives "shooting" heroin in a washroom. Another company said a 48-year-old supervisor unwisely ate a "brownie" he found on his desk and wound up in the hospital.

The cookie had been laced with LSD.

CONTINUE TO FLOCK INTO MARKET

Small Investors Display 'Strong Backbone of Confidence'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 30 million Americans own stocks and collectively they have shared in the stock market's loss of $300 billion in the values of securities during the last 18 months.

Nonetheless, according to Donald Regan, president of the stock brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, they remain overwhelmingly optimistic—especially those in "Middle America."

Regan told the Joint Congressional Economic Committee from January to June small investors were flocking into the market, buying more than they were selling, and displaying "a long, strong backbone of confidence in this country."

Excerpts from his testimony:

"The confidence of which I am speaking, surprisingly enough, showed itself most strongly in the first few months of 1970. . . .

In the very period when the experts were most depressed, many investors in America were quite the opposite.

From January through June of this year, Merrill Lynch opened a surprising total of 215,000 new accounts. We are opening them at an annual rate of 424,000 — the same rate at which we opened them during the bull market of 1968, and about the same as last year as well. . . .

"THEY simply called us up, or walked in. They know a little about stocks and bonds, but not very much. About 35 per cent of them were making the first investment of their lives in the securities market.

"Generally, these are people with incomes that we would judge to be modest. More than half of them have incomes of less than $15,000 a year. Over a third of them have a net worth of less than $25,000. Over half are under 40 years of age.

"Their primary interest lies in the long-term future. They want to increase their net worth, although in ways that are essentially conservative. As an illustration of their conservatism, less than 10 per cent open margin accounts. Ninety per cent pay in full and in cash for what they buy. Overwhelmingly, they are bullish.

"As witnesses to recent sidelines, appear to have learned a good deal. Significant differences emerge between their attitudes and the attitudes taken by those who were new customers a couple of years ago.

"OUR NEW customer of 1970, having watched the market decline and having come to the vivid understanding that it is possible to lose money, is more interested than his predecessors in minimizing risk, and the safety of his capital. He is also more concerned about income from dividends and interest than the new customer was in 1968. . . .

"People opening new accounts this year want to know more about municipal and government bonds. The appeal of high yields and security is pretty strong right now. . . .

"One significant group of investors — about 15 per cent of the total — are frequent buyers but infrequent sellers. They are for the most part small investors. Half of them are blue-collar workers. Seven out of 10 of them own less than $10,000 in stocks. They have a low financial net worth, and are heavily concentrated in the $10,000-$15,000 income groups. . . .

"OUR STUDIES show that they buy about 20 times over a two-year period. They sell far, far less frequently. Some of them do not sell at all. . . .

"We discovered with interest that all during 1970, during the sharpest drop in the bear market, the individual investor was on balance a net buyer.

"The most depressing period of the long bear market came in May, when the Dow Jones industrial average dropped to 630. But this tendency on the part of the individual to buy and hold became more pronounced at just that time than at any other.

"In that month, the individual investor trading in odd lots was a buyer 63 times out of a 100. Trading in round lots, he was a buyer 55 times out of a 100. We are not quite sure where the institutions were doing this critical period. But we know where the individual was.

"REPORTS coming in from our offices across the United States also support the view that it was 'Heartland America' that was doing most of the buying. . . .

"On balance, it looks fairly clear that people in Middle America — in places like Little Rock and Houston and Albuquerque — were moving into the market at that critical period. At the same time, the amount of brokerage done by our offices in the big seaboard cities was falling off.

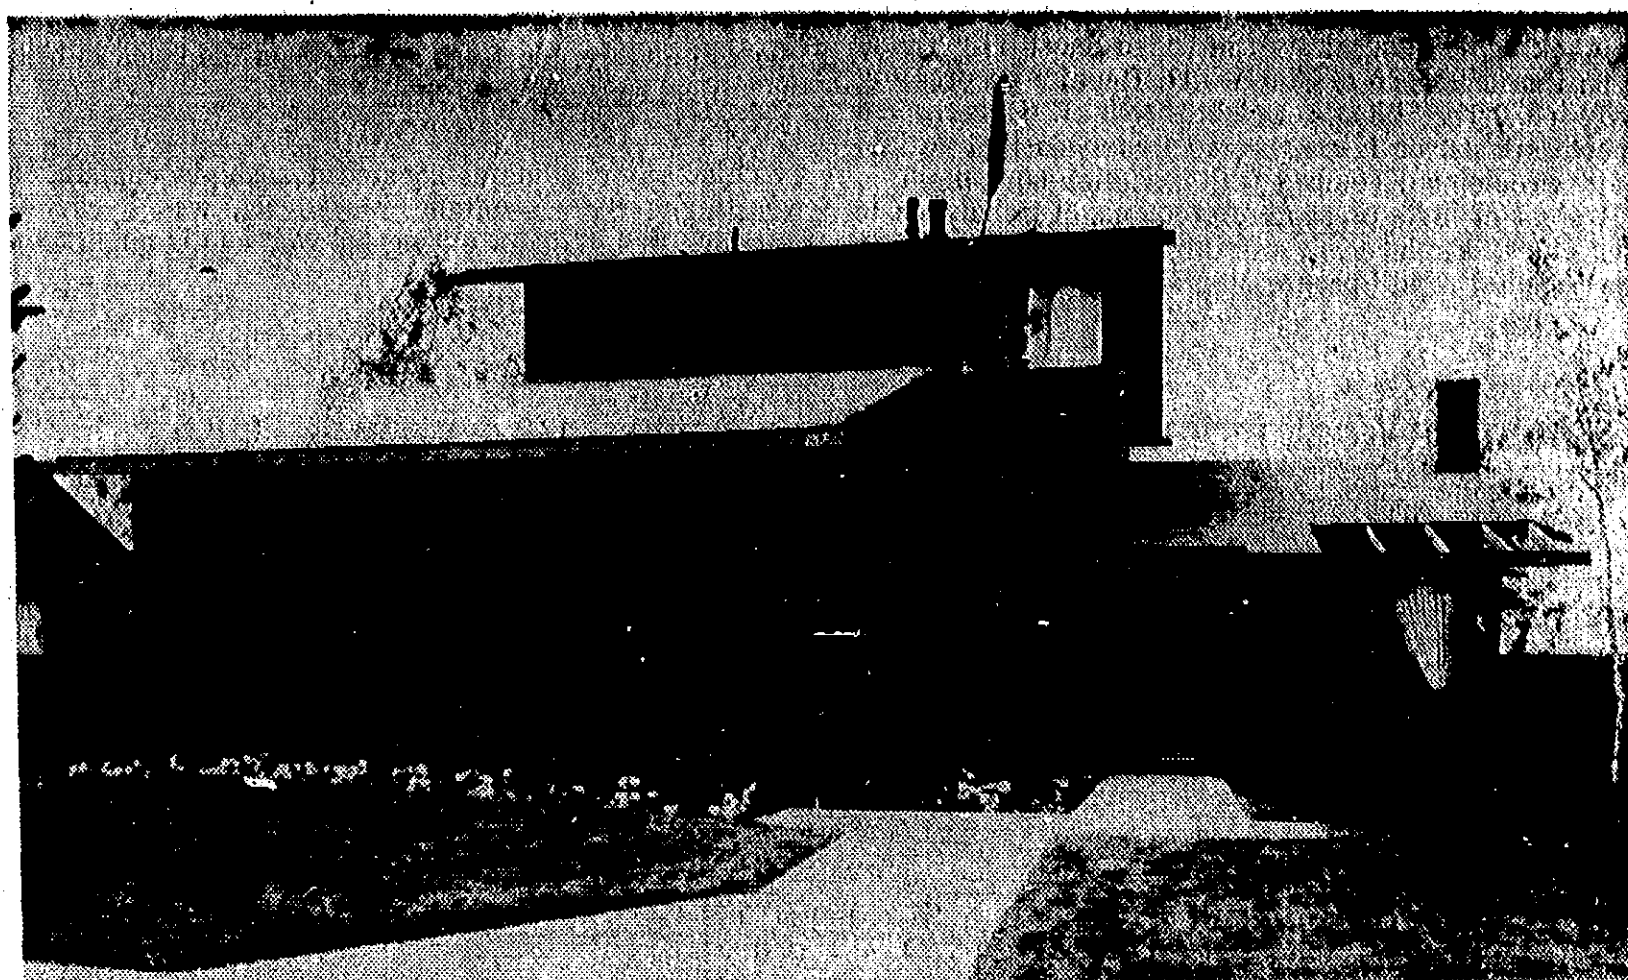

"So, in sum, I believe, that we had a rather heartening demonstration of confidence from the heartland. Individuals, many of them very small investors, were very active as buyers at a critical moment. That explains in part the rise in the Dow Jones of 32 points on May 27th. . . .

"I DO NOT mean to go too far with this thesis. Investors are not happy right now. They never are when values decline.

"And, despite the encouraging attitudes that they have shown toward the long term, investors have not been trading at the levels of past years.

Thus far this year, volume on the New York Stock Exchange is down 9.3 per cent as compared with the same period in 1968, and 4.1 per cent as compared with the same period last year.

On the American Exchange, the decline has been much sharper: On the same basis of comparison, volume is down 41 per cent as against 1968, and 36 per cent as against last year. The over-the-counter index shows volume at its lowest level since the index was started in 1967."

CENTURY SHORES HOMES... Also Opening in Huntington Beach

OPENING IN CERRITOS

Century Village Festivities Begin

A "family carnival" theme will highlight the grand opening festivities at the 335-home Century Village development in Cerritos and the 260-home Century Shores community in Huntington Beach.

Both are PBS Corp. projects, featuring superior locations, high-quality, single-family homes and prices that start at $22,995.

The carnival will feature free pony rides, balloons and cotton candy for the children, and a variety of refreshments for the adults.

"Our festivities accentuate the family orientation of Century Homes," said John Parker, president of PBS Corp.

"The communities are perfect for newly-weds, young families with small children, and mature couples approaching retirement. In fact, they are ideal for any family that wants the multiple advantages of home ownership, but doesn't want to take on full-time maintenance of a massive home," Parker added.

CENTURY VILLAGE in Cerritos is located on Carmelita Boulevard, between South Street and the Artesia Freeway, equidistant between the business and recreational activities of Los Angeles, Long Beach and central Orange County.

The project is less than one mile from a proposed 80-acre county-regional recreational park. Facilities planned for the park include a lake, swimming, and sports and recreational facilities.

Century Shores in Huntington Beach is located on Bushard Street, between Atlanta and Indianapolis Avenues.

The development is less than a mile-and-a-half from the swimming, sunbathing, and world-famous surfing accommodations of Huntington Beach State Park.

It is also less than one mile from four new schools, covering elementary, junior high, high school and parochial education.

CENTURY Shores and Century Village offer four identical plans, with one and two-story models available. The homes provide up to four bedrooms with two baths.

Bixby Hill--New Luxury With 18th Century Charm

One of the Southland's most fascinating "new home" communities is located in Long Beach at Bixby Hill Estates.

S & S Construction Company has blended both the old and the new in a hillside setting for the luxury homes which surround historic Rancho Los Alamitos.

Only a minute from the heart of the Rancho, the model complex for this newest and final section of the community of Bixby Hill sets the stage for gracious modern living in total accord with the Southern California tradition.

TODAY, Rancho Los Alamitos is a nationally recognized historical site of 7 1/2 acres which includes the original home and gardens for the rancho inherited by Don Juan Jose Nieto from his father's Spanish grant of 1784 and later owned by the Bixby family who operated it as a ranch until 1954 — and for whom Bixby Hill was named.

Bixby Hill Estates is located on the slopes surrounding the restored core of the rancho where, ultimately, there will be 260 homes.

The second section, which will have 122 homes, was officially opened in May.

EVEN before the homebuyer arrives at the model homes the mood of Bixby Hill is evident in the quiet streets and cul-de-sacs lined with large, well-groomed homes and grounds which have a quiet dignity and elegance.

Bixby Hill offers five all-new models, chosen from seven available floor plans, and every home is distinctively different, offering from two to six bedrooms in both one and two-story plans.

Each homebuyer has the opportunity to personally choose exteriors, entries, fireplaces from a selection of custom designs, color schemes in flooring and carpeting, and other important home features.

THE HOMES are priced from $61,990.

Gates to the walled community are located at the southern end of Palo Verde Boulevard in Long Beach.

The community stretches up from the guardhouse at the entrance to the crest of the knoll on which the Ranch is located.

To reach the sales office, go through the gates and turn Right on Bixby Hill Drive. Turn left on Hillside Drive. The sales office and model homes are open from 10 a.m. each day until sunset.

Good Grief, Chris, What's Delaying Your Sailing?

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Real Estate Editor

I slouched in my Japan Air Lines seat and mused over the obvious lack of red tape in many business dealings I had witnessed during three weeks in the Orient.

What Americans gain in speed of handling orders, let's say, they are apt to lose in a maze of paper work.

Idly, I picked the airline's magazine from the pocket ahead of me and chanced to turn to an article, written by Mike Berger and headed: "Good Grief, Columbus" and "If Christopher Tried to Sail Today."

My interest quickened — and yours will, too, as you read:

"In his time, Christopher Columbus cranked out a couple of nutty, if knowledgeable, notions.

First, he argued the world was round when everybody who was anybody knew it was as flat as a double-loom.

Then he stoutly maintained you could reach India by sailing westward across the Atlantic.

Let's assume history has slipped a few hundred years. Columbus is planning his historic venture under the ground rules of business management today. He hopes to set sail Aug. 3, 1970, instead of 1492. He's just received a royal okay from King Ferdinand, Queen Isabella and a passel of palace politicians.

Armed with all our modern business "conveniences," plus the ubiquitous Project Progress Report, Columbus picks up his quill pen and writes:

(From Grand Admiral Christopher Columbus to King Ferdinand.)

"First general staff meeting. Each section chief asked to submit detailed goals and timetables for his department. Task force formed to locate three seaworthy sailing vessels. Chief of Planning converting entire project into planning networks boards to be displayed in the new conference room upon completion. Chief of Public Relations brainstormed a title for our venture, 'Project Ocean Blue.'"

REPORT 2

"Three vessels located, the Nina, Pinta, and Santa Maria. Preliminary analysis of large seagoing vessel market indicates these ships are the only square-riggers immediately available that meet budget requirements and specifications. New Systems and Computer Group has undertaken feasibility study to determine if they should do a feasibility study on computer buy or lease options.

General Provisions unable to locate walnut for the conference room. Expert in artificial satellite navigation hired by Navigations."

REPORT 3

"General Provisions reports difficulty in purchasing the three vessels. Holding up procurement is Termite Inspection Certificate which must be issued prior to sale. Chief of Provisions attempting to circumvent delay by obtaining Waiver of Inspection.

Completed feasibility study indicates a feasibility study is feasible. Wide variety of navigation equipment reviewed. Bids to be let next week. Walnut still unavailable for executive conference room. Advertising for the crew being run in all major coastal cities."

REPORT 4

"Work on the project stopped for several days while project title, 'Ocean Blue,' reviewed by Office of Equal Opportunity Employment.

They took exception to an ad that was run nationally for 'cabin boys.' Claim the word 'boy' clearly discriminatory against females. Compromise reached and new ads will be rerun for 'cabin persons.' Have leased a computer and installed a work control system called Work Hours in Process. Preliminary system reports indicate Ship Procurement is lagging, Navigation and Meteorology ahead of schedule.

Chief of Provisioning able to get termite inspection waived. We are pleased to hear of your visit next week; pushing for completion of the executive conference room."

REPORT 5

"Work temporarily delayed by labor dispute. Personnel in General Provisioning refused to work with the new Work Hours in Process Systems. They took exception to the name WHIP Systems and refused to work under the WHIP for anyone.

(They claimed WHIP Systems went out with galley slaves.) Name subsequently changed to WTS (Work Tracking System) and operations resumed. Legal Department suggests Lithuanian registry to obtain maximum tax consideration.

"Sorry our new executive conference room was not finished for your visit."

REPORT 6

"Additional obstacles appeared. Stern portion of the Nina fell off — termites. Ship Engineering locating new source of oak for necessary repairs.

Team of government inspectors arrived, insisting vessels be certified as complying with new anti-smog laws before work continues.

Computer indicates work behind schedule except in Navigations where electronic equipment is being delivered. Consultant from Boo, Sand, Allen Inc. retained. Mr. Markowitz is an expert in motivational problems and work flow. Personnel Department has been unable to find veteran square-rigger sailors. They did hire 180 experienced Oriental sailors whose experience on junks is very similar."

REPORT 7

"Mixup in deliveries resulted in executive conference room being paneled with oak and a carload of walnut delivered for ships repairs. Chief of Public Relations reports analysis shows nonacceptance of vessel names. "Ships renamed. 'The Bonnie Bright,' 'The Blue Briar' and 'The Brentwood.' Analysis indicates B's are big this year. Dispute over control of the Purchasing Unit has been settled. As a compromise, the Department will report to Markowitz, the consultant."

REPORT 8

"Major decisions concerning vessels postponed for one week while general staff attended Sensitivity Training on the insistence of Markowitz. Repairs progressing slowly on "The Bonnie Bright" (Nina). Government inspectors insist on inspecting all materials that go into repair. Problems developed with navigation equipment.

Weight of units presenting problems of imbalance to older ships. Engineering working on a fix. Repairs to "The Bonnie Bright" progressing slowly.

Load of oak rejected by the inspectors because supplier lost his approved Vendor Rating for hiring a carpenter who couldn't prove he was a citizen. Computer indicates vessels should be seaworthy, and general provisioning three-fourths complete.

Chief of General Provisioning assures me logistics still within revised pessimistic estimates of original revision of the revised network. Foreign registry for the vessels received."

REPORT 9

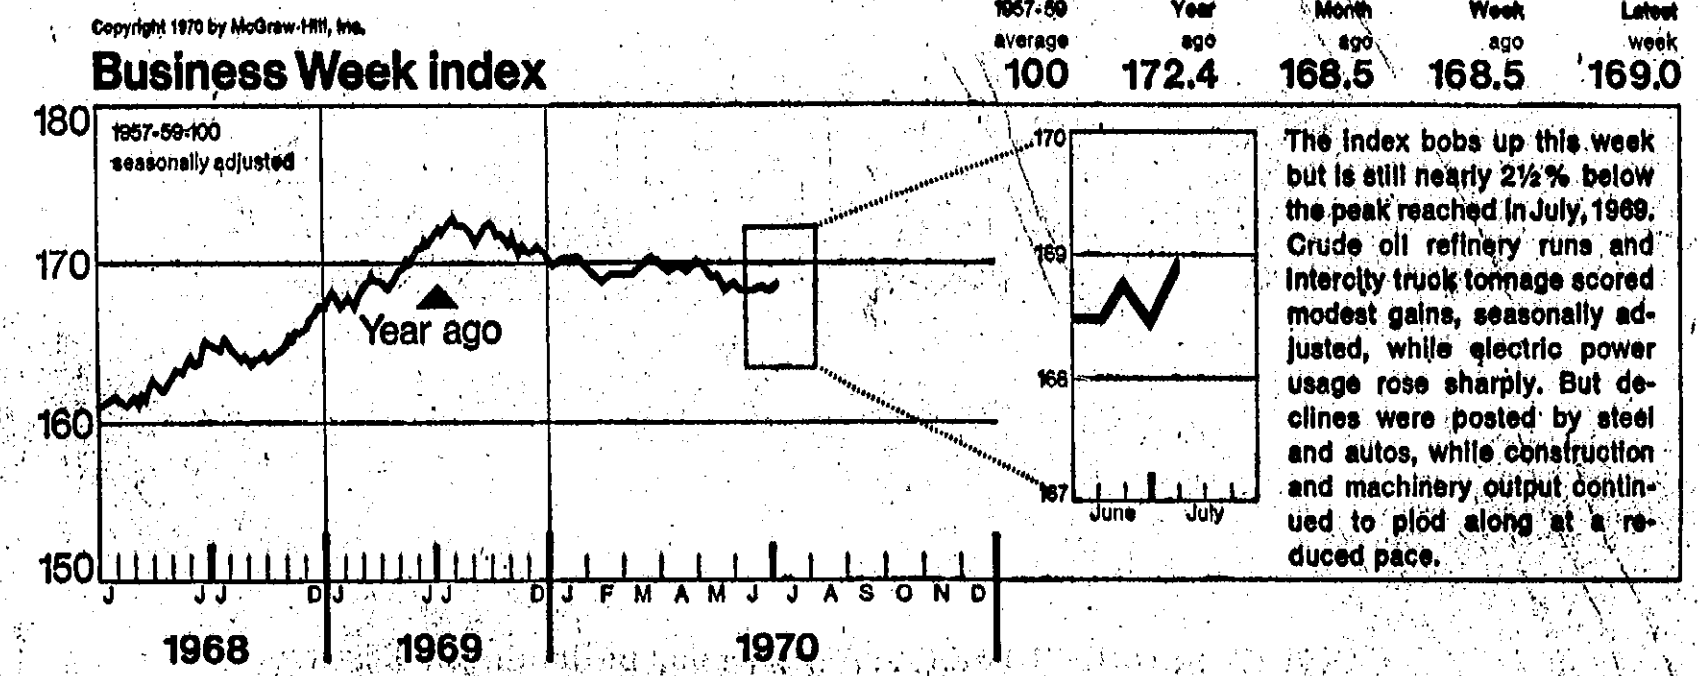

"Coordination of the project difficult. Staff refused to speak to each other after returning from Sensitivity Training. Engineering computes that if all navigation equipment is stowed on the starboard side of the ships, it can be kept in equilibrium if two-thirds or more of the crew stay on port side.

"A personal complication has arisen. My ship's officer's papers do not apply to a foreign registration.

"Immediate search conducted for a ship's captain who will qualify. Meetings held around the clock to bring the project back on schedule."

REPORT 10

"Several candidates located for ship's captain. Interestingly, the consultant, Markowitz, was a captain stationed in Lithuania during the war and is qualified to hold registration.

Crude Oil, Electricity Output Gains

Despite losses in steel and auto production, this week's index inched 2.0 per cent ahead of the week-ago figures.

Steel production dropped 2.2 per cent, an 0.4 per cent decline below a year ago.

Auto production fell 1.4 per cent — skidding to a 1.0 per cent level below a year ago.

Crude oil refinery runs gained 0.3 per cent, and electric power output rose 8.3 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings went up 0.4 per cent; all other carloadings fell 1.7 per cent, reflecting a loss in coal transport. Intercity truck tonnage increased 0.4 per cent.

Paperboard production remained at the week ago level.

THE LIGHTER SIDE Ever Hear of Singing Ice Cubes?

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifty-eight years ago the Titanic was sunk by an iceberg, and soon it will be possible for you to meet similar fate without leaving home.

For there has just been introduced in America a new kind of "party ice" that comes directly from icebergs found in the North Atlantic off Greenland and Newfoundland.

Crucible Specialty Metals Moves Into Carson Plant

Crucible Specialty Metals Division of Colt Industries has moved into its new $600,000 Western District headquarters in Watson Industrial Center, Carson.

The plant was designed and located to assure fast delivery of special-purpose metals throughout the 11 western states, according to Fred H. Thoke, district manager.

"Our warehouse was specially designed to take full advantage of the latest in automatic materials-handling equipment," he explained. "And our location in Watson Center had remarkable transport capacity. We have direct rail connections to the West's major railroads, quick freeway access to the western states highway system, and are within 10 miles of the nation's second most-scheduled airport and within five miles of the continent's third largest seaport."

MANAGER
Wayne Moore (above), of Fullerton, has been appointed manager of Ball of America's Belmont Shore branch, succeeding Lyle Caplinger, promoted to vice president at bank's San Francisco headquarters.

FOR FAST materials handling, the 17,300-square-foot plant has two floor-operated, pendant-controlled overhead cranes of five and 10-ton capacity that reach both rail cars and trucks for loading and unloading.

Using cantilevered racks and steel trays for storage, a three-ton-capacity, battery-powered loader can vertically store Crucible's products to within six feet of the 29-foot-high warehouse roof from service aisles 4 1/2 feet wide.

Colt's Specialty Metals Division is the world's leading producer of tool steels, including high-speed, die casting and plastic mold steels; it also manufactures high-temperature alloys, automotive valve steels, stainless steels and titanium alloys, all in bar, rod and wire.

Thoke has been with Crucible for 20 years; he recently transferred to the West Coast from the firm's Chicago offices.

ration formed for the specific purpose of chipping ice off of icebergs.

Then it is placed in plastic bags and transported to the United States for sale in supermarkets for use at cocktail parties and other affairs at which thirsty people congregate.

Radex officials say the iceberg chunks make an "ideal coolant for mixed drinks." They claim it is five ways superior to ordinary ice made in your refrigerator out of the recycled and chlorinated gunk that flows from your water tap.

FOR ONE thing, it is unpolluted. Being on the average about 10,000 years old, iceberg ice is totally free of DDT, detergent sium and other extra ingredients.

Secondly, the melting rate is about 20 per cent slower than that of ordinary ice. Which explains my reference to the Titanic.

Since it melts at a slower rate, it also dilutes a drink less quickly. This, in turn, can capsize the guests at a cocktail party 20 per cent sooner than they would normally become awash.

Thirdly, cubes of iceberg float higher in the glass. (Frankly, I fail to see what advantages that offers, but I thought I would mention it anyway as a scientific curiosity.)

Fourthly, as the ice melts in the glass it releases tiny air bubbles which produce a sort of singing noise in your drink.

AT THE Iceberg Ice premiere that I attended, I frequently lifted my glass to my ear. At first it was singing "It Was Sad When That Great Ship Went Down." But later it switched to "Down By the Old Millstream."

Fifthly, iceberg ice makes a good conversation piece.

If lifting your glass to your ear doesn't start a conversation, you can talk about the incongruity of having four-year-old whiskey on 10,000-year-old rocks.

I must say that I would prefer 10,000-year-old whiskey with four-year-old ice. But unfortunately nobody has ever discovered any bourbonbergs.

Government inspectors lean heavily in selecting Markowitz due to his five-point veterans' preference. Distribution of seven million marketing brochures halted until captain selected."

REPORT 11

"Markowitz chosen ship's captain and new brochure being reprinted. Executive conference room completed and work board prominently displayed. Biggest break came, however, when government inspectors discovered they were on the wrong project.

Actually they had been assigned to oversee construction of a replica of Lef Erickson's bark for the Royal Museum. I have fired Chief of Navigation over new navigational equipment flap. Have decided to use archaic but reliable instrument called a sextant."

REPORT 12

"Computer indicates vessels are 87 per cent seaworthy. Estimated the project will only require two more weeks and an additional 20 per cent allocation to complete.

"A request for additional time and funding is hereby made."

FOLLOWING CORRESPONDENCE FROM KING OF SPAIN, CHIEF OF PROJECTS, IS NOTED.

"First, let us congratulate you on completing your conference room. We have followed the progress of 'Ocean Blue' with special interest. We are thrilled by the thought of three square-riggers called 'The Bonnie Bright,' 'The Blue Briar' and 'The Brentwood,' manned by 180 career sailors and captained by a man named Markowitz.

"Unfortunately, a complication has arisen. First, an enterprising former employee named Frank Drake has formed a spin-off company, copied your 'Round World' thing.

He set sail for the New World last week. May I add 'Project Ocean Blue' was the most contemporarily managed, best organized, and highly motivated adventure that ever went out of business."

NAMED
Randy Hill, formerly associated with Kaufman & Broad, has been named assistant vice president-marketing for Modular Technology, Inc., builder of Suburbia Homes.

Mexico Acquires Trackage

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The last section of foreign-owned railroad became Mexico's property last week.

The Mexican National Railway paid a reported $200,000 for track and other physical properties of the old San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railroad between Tijuana and Tecate.

Included was 43 miles of track just south of the U.S.-Mexican border.

The line built at the turn of the century has been operated since 1908 by the San Diego and Arizona, now a division of Southern Pacific. At one time, there were hourly passenger and freight runs through the territory under a lease with the Mexican government.

ONLY CARGO has moved the past 15 years over the route connecting with railroads at El Centro and San Diego, Calif.

Under union agreements, the line's three stations have been manned and maintenance work done by Mexican citizens in recent years.

The sale was made final in Mexico City by William A. Barker, president of the San Diego and Arizona eastern division of Southern Pacific, spokesman for the line said.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

Did you ever rub onion on your windshield to keep it from fogging?
Or put pennies on battery terminals to hold down corrosion?
Or let air out of tires when you were stuck in sand, mud or snow?
Or coast with the car out of gear to save gasoline?
As long as there have been automobiles, people have been coming up with such odd-ball solutions to their car problems.
Many of these remedies are so well-known and so widely used they are practically folklore. But do they really work?
It is hard to disagree with the horse sense of so many old drivers, but experts do not recommend any of the above practices.
Not that they are completely useless. All of them have some value, if no other remedy is available. In most cases their use is ruled out by undesirable side effects.
For example, letting air out of tires will often help you get unstuck, especially in loose sand, but unless you have some way to put the air back in the tires immediately, you may cause damage that would cost more than calling a tow truck.
B. F. Goodrich experts say thousands of tires are ruined every year by the practice of "bleeding tires."
"BLEEDING" IS THE WORD tire men use to indicate the practice of letting air out of tires for any of several reasons — to make the car ride smoother, to keep the wheels from sinking too deeply in soft ground, or to reduce pressure in hot tires after they have been run hard under heavy load.
No tire should be run more than a few feet if it is severely under-inflated, or more than a few miles at slow speed if it has slightly less-than-recommended pressure.
Although soft tires will often help you get out of sand, mud or soft, deep snow, they give less grip than fully inflated tires on hard surfaces, wet surfaces and hard-packed snow or ice.
For top tire safety and economy, never let the pressure fall below the tire and auto manufacturers' recommendations. Do not bleed air from your tires when they are hot from running. It is normal for the tire pressure to increase several pounds when the car is run fast, or with a heavy load, for a long time.
Any B. F. Goodrich dealer or auto service center will be glad to give you free advice on the pressure you should carry in your tires.

BOOK REVIEW

Worry About Interest Rates Some Other Day

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS & SECRETS ABOUT REAL ESTATE, by Earl Carlisle. American Yearbook Company.
In a chapter headed "Should I Buy Now in View of Present High Interest Rates?", the author asks an interesting question — and provides an informative answer.
"If I buy now," the question goes, "won't I be stuck with this 9½ per cent interest when the going rate returns to 6½ per cent?"
The answer, Carlisle writes: "NO. When interest rates reach the 6½ per cent area, there will be an abundance of loan money available. At this point, an individual can shop for a new loan with a lower interest rate. This process is called refinancing."

Carlisle, involved for six years in California real estate, is a licensed broker and believes in limitless real estate opportunities.
He writes an easy-to-digest book, with chapters ranging from real estate to the "right real estate salesman for you." — by Robert Beckman.

Wall Street Seat Value Has Ups, Downs

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who owns a seat on a major stock exchange knows everything there is to know about paper losses. Not just because of professional interest, either; it is a very personal matter with them.
Suppose, for example, that one year ago you were convinced, as have many others for 180 years or so, that a fortune could be made in Wall Street. Having met many other requirements, you pay $515,000 for a seat on the New York Stock Exchange.
That sum gives you the privilege of doing business on the exchange floor, of buying and selling stocks and earning commissions on customers' orders and, of course, keeping a close watch on your own portfolio.

As of May 12, your investment had declined to $200,000, and the price line was pointed almost straight down, something like the line that depicts the Dow Jones Industrial Average.
SINCE it reached that $515,000 a year ago, the price of a seat declined steadily until November, when it did a little jig at $375,000 before falling to a plateau of $300,000 early this year, from which it proceeded to the cliff.

Since misery not only loves company but usually has it, you would not be alone. The paper value of the 1,366 seats on the Big Board have declined in value from $703,490,000 last May to $273,200,000 on May 12.
That loss, you might say with an absence of sympathy, hardly compares with a whopping decline in the value of all stocks listed on the exchange — from $691.9 billion in April a year ago to $553.8 billion at the end of last month — but that loss was spread among 26 million shareholders.

That means the seat loss of $315,000 compares with an average shareholder loss of $5,280. Averages give a somewhat distorted story, but in this case the contrast may suggest the relative misery involved.
SEAT prices have always had their ups and downs, often quite sharply, but you must go back to the era of The Great Depression before finding similar declines. In 1933, for example, prices dropped to $90,000 from $250,000.

The explanation for the declines of more than three decades ago were simple: Brokers who began feeling a glimmer of hope following the 1929 debacle were finally realizing that the country and the market were in an economic mudhole.
During the past year or so, however, a special mixture of factors has affected prices, and who knows, perhaps permanently. Among them:
—Volume has declined at a time in which many brokers have invested heavily in the future, confident that volume would continue rising. Many firms bought seats as an investment in the future.
The nature of the volume also has changed. On some days of late more than 60 per cent of trading volume has been by institutions, such as mutual and pension funds. The public has retreated from the market.

handling small accounts. One broker has a few very large orders; the other has many, many small orders.
—Stock prices have eroded, and that means the fortunes of many brokers have also contracted.
—Some firms are having capital problems, especially since they must spend large amounts on modernizing their operations. They need money, and so they are forced to sell.
—There have been several mergers of brokerage houses. And, like the merged corporations that find themselves with one president too many, merged brokerage houses find themselves with an unneeded seat.
For these, and perhaps for less obvious reasons, a lethargy has descended on the market for seats. It's even worse over on the American Stock Exchange, where prices have dropped from $345,000 a year ago to $100,000 this month.

UNWANTED as he sometimes appears to be, it is the individual investor who helps prop up seat prices. The brokers who handle institutional orders might need fewer floor brokers than the houses

LABOR UNIONS SAY 'YES'

Are American Jobs Exported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whether pirated or fugitive, American jobs are being exported.
"Creeping, subtle, undeclared and largely unrecognized international warfare is in progress. The winners are the multinational companies, and the losers are factory communities and workers stranded on the road to greater profitability."

America's most powerful labor organization, the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO) is shaken.
"Goods sold in this country, with a U.S. brand name, may actually be composed of different parts that were produced in a multi-national corporation's far-flung plant in Taiwan, Korea and the United States, assembled in Mexico, and sold in the American market at American prices," said Nathaniel Goldfinger, AFL-CIO economist.
"Goods produced by these multi-national company methods include clothing and shoes, as well as glass and autos, radios, business machinery and television sets," he said.
"Until a few years ago, the basic steel industry was a domestic, American industry, but the basic steel industry, too, is going multinational."
"Tens of thousands of American jobs are being exported, each year, in this process. Many of the major, respectable business firms in this country are engaged in this process of exporting American technology and American jobs."

BUT, why not?
— The U.S. government encourages overseas private investment in developing countries.
— Wages, for one reason or another, are lower elsewhere.
— Overseas markets are becoming increasingly enticing.
— It makes good economic sense to move industries near their sources of raw material, labor supplies, markets, or where they are protected from competition, or enhanced by tax policy.
But the other side of the picture is proving worrisome to official Washington.
The volume of goods and services produced as a result of U.S. foreign investment now exceeds the volume of goods and services the United States exports in normal international trade.

Village Plaza Shopping Center Plans Completed

Completion of preliminary architectural plans and economic and site studies for the $7.5 million Village Plaza Shopping Center were recently announced by Mission Viejo Company.

The 28-acre regional shopping center, which is planned for the intersection of La Paz Road and Marguerite Parkway, will be built and completed in "related phases," according to Phillip J. Reilly, president of Mission Viejo Company.

"Each phase will be a complete 'center,'" Reilly said. "This method of construction will give the center an appearance of completion when the first phase is finalized and throughout the final phases of construction."

THE PLAZA'S first phase will include a department store, market, drug store, bank, service station and small specialty shops and boutiques.

Its design will utilize the charm of early-California ranch styling with Spanish courtyards, landscaped informal gardens and arcades.

Strollers' malls will add to the pleasure of shoppers. Walkways and parking seos will highlight the buildings.

Architecturally planned to incorporate the red tile roofs of Mission Viejo, the new plaza will totally incorporate the theme of the community.

THE FIRST phase of completion is scheduled for mid-1971. Planned for the second phase are a two-acre fiesta arcade with sunken courtyard designed for community gatherings, special shows and displays.

There will be parking facilities for more than 1,650 cars in the total plaza.

Other shops planned for the Village Plaza will be restaurants, jewelry, music and shoe stores, sporting goods, camera and toy shops.

Century 21 Homes in Liquidation

A liquidation sale of the remaining 17 homes at Century 21 Homes in Anaheim is beginning this weekend, according to Robert Solomon, principal of SIR Development.

Model homes also will be placed on the seller's block and, according to Solomon, buyers can save $1,940 during the sale.

The 103-home community, Anaheim's first zero-side-yard development, is located on Brookhurst Street, just south of Ball Road in Anaheim.

"This progressive zero side yard innovation places the entire home to one side of the lot, thus eliminating two tiny side yards and substituting one large usable side yard," Solomon said.

THE NEW ideas which have been incorporated in the Century 21 homes reflect extensive planning. The easy maintenance, time saving and comfort features are an important part of each and every house plan.

Some of these conveniences include the built-in oven with range, patio serving kitchen with laminated plastic counter tops for easier cleaning and durability, dishwasher, double-terrace sink with waste disposal, and color co-ordinated vinyl asbestos floors.

Century 21 homes are priced from the medium range with VA, FHA and conventional financing available. Prices begin at $29,990.

Japan Piano Imports Cuts Jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department has certified 280 workers for federal cash and other aid because they were laid off by a Michigan piano plant as a result of the impact of Japanese imports.

The department said imports of pianos from Japan forced the Story and Clark Piano Co., Grand Haven, Mich., to close May 13. It is not scheduled to reopen until late this month.

Under a program for persons whose jobs are jeopardized by imports, the Michigan workers will receive benefits of $85 per week for a year as well as testing, counseling, training, job placement and possible relocations.

Pacific Asks Rate Increase

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. says it needs $195 million in increased rates because of demands for better service, growing inflation and declining earnings.

The telephone company made its pitch to the Public Utilities Commission here in one of a series of hearings throughout the state on the P&T proposal for that would mean $1.85 more in monthly charges for a typical residential phone and $3.70 more for a business phone.

Several spoke against the proposal from the floor. "No family or business can afford such a substantial increase on top of seven per cent inflation and an ever increasing cost of living," said Garret Shean of Consumers Arise Now (CAN).

George Eckhardt, a lawyer for the phone company, said the hike is needed to finance $750 million in new construction this year.

'Back to School' Time in Casa Del Amo Sales

A "back to school" grand opening for Casa Del Amo will begin this weekend in Cerritos, according to Robert Solomon, principal of SIR Development.

Casa Del Amo, a private, walled community on Bloomfield Avenue just north of Del Amo Boulevard, is a new $3.4 million subdivision of some 179 homes.

Twelve different exterior designs based on four prototype models are being presented in the "back to school" special opening, three and four bedrooms, and two-story designs with three and four bedrooms.

Homes are priced beginning at $27,995, a figure that includes many accessory items in the purchase.

THE HOMES will offer cathedral ceilings, luminous kitchen ceilings, insulation in the entire ceiling area, pantries with adjustable shelves, oversized bath mirrors, masonry fireplaces with gas log lighters, marble topped pullmans and kitchen built-ins that include dishwasher and waste disposal.

Additional features such as shake and shingle roofs, concrete driveways, outdoor electrical outlets, termite proofing, copper plumbing and rear-yard fencing are also included at Casa Del Amo.

Sales counselors from Walker & Lee Real Estate will keep models open daily.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Remember When Buying, Maintenance Costs, Too

By DON CAMPBELL

"Heavy, heavy hangs over thy head" — heavy housing expenses, that is. In other words, the perennial question staring any prospective home owner in the face is a fairly basic one: now that I'm jazzed up about buying a home, how much of a home can I afford?

It's a whale of a good question, and one that nags the experienced home owner constantly. Obviously, too, it is a vital question since overly-oppressive housing costs can sour a family on a new home faster than the discovery of massive termite infestation.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We live in a one-bedroom apartment renting for $178 per month including some amenities. Our lease expires this summer, and we expect our first child in the fall. We would like to move to something more spacious, and to something that would allow us to build up some equity and give us some tax advantages.

For background information, you may find it helpful to know we are in our early 20s, have good jobs, and our income for 1969-70 was approximately $17,000. We finished school last July, and became employed then and have since paid for about $1,500 worth of new furniture, have saved about $2,000 in the last six months, and should have $1,000 saved by the time our lease expires. We have no outstanding debts, but, of course, our income will drop to around $15,000 this summer since my wife will quit work.

With our savings of about $3,000, we would like to determine the wisdom of buying a new home now that could be built to our specifications for about $32,000 including lot ($6,000) and the essentials which will allow one to move in — carpeting, stove, roughed-in basement, etc., totaling up to $32,000 and exclusive of closing costs, etc.

We have been encouraged by the builder to make full down payment of about $7,500 rather than finance the excess of $3,000 by contract — the idea being that it is a substantial saving in the long run. We can get the extra $4,500 from our respective parents who have volunteered whatever we need. We have given some consideration to FHA financing, but think it is more costly.

With this plan our payments would be about $250 a month including taxes and insurance. This would not include repaying our parents which we could do over a period of years.

Hence, are we on sound ground, or are we overextending ourselves? I personally think housing costs will continue upward 7-10 per cent per year and interest will not weaken much, but I would generally appreciate your views on our situation. — Mrs. D. E. A.

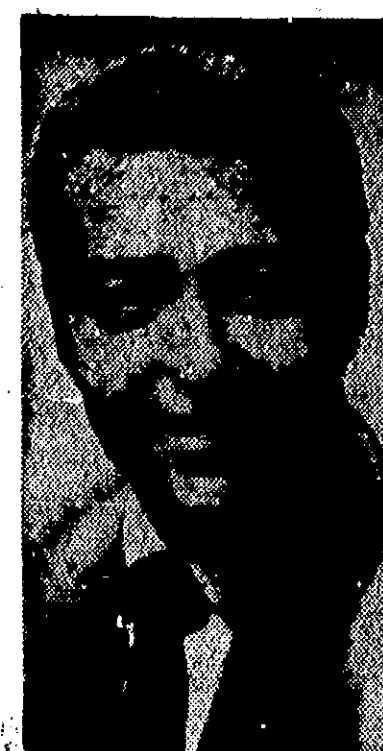

ANSWER: The two of you sound both industrious and thrifty, as well as — of course — pregnant, which can be something of a jarring note except for the fact that you are both in your early 20s when this sort of thing does, indeed, tend to pop up in the midst of things just about on schedule.

Financially, too, you seem to be doing very well.

On the surface, at least, you must realize that with an annual income of $15,000, you are stretching things just a bit when you elect to take on a house carrying with it basic expenses (principal, interest, taxes and insurance) of $250 a month.

Under the so-called "Rule of 60," that is, one should not take on a house where the basic expenses are more than his gross annual income divided by 60. You will have a gross annual income of $15,000 which, divided by 60, amounts to $250, so you're right on the head in this respect. What you may have forgotten, though, is that heating, cooling and normal repair and maintenance are going to cost another 5 per cent of your gross annual income — or about $750 a year, additionally.

So, you see, you're cutting things a bit thin by not taking into account this additional $750 a year. Still and all, many things about home ownership are intensely personal, and much of it depends upon the extent, really and truly, that you want this house. Are you willing to do a little scrimping and corner-cutting in other expenditures, such as keeping your vacations inexpensive, and your party-throwing down to a minimum?

If you are really this sincere — and if your parents are patient about getting their money back — then the house you have in mind is not really beyond your grasp. I wish you the very best of luck.

MR. CAMPBELL:

Could you tell us in your column what has to be done when a house loan is paid off?

The bank officer just said we had to have the Deed of Reconveyance recorded. My husband said the bank isn't doing its duty by telling us what to do — if there is anything else to be done.

We had a grand time in the burning of the deed — just paper — and are going to enjoy another 20 years in our place.

ANSWER: Let's not make life any more complicated than necessary. Your broker is correct in his comment about the Deed of Reconveyance. Occasionally, of course, the mortgages will execute a "Satisfaction Piece," which is a separate instrument, and duly recording it to show that the debt has been paid. It isn't really required, however.

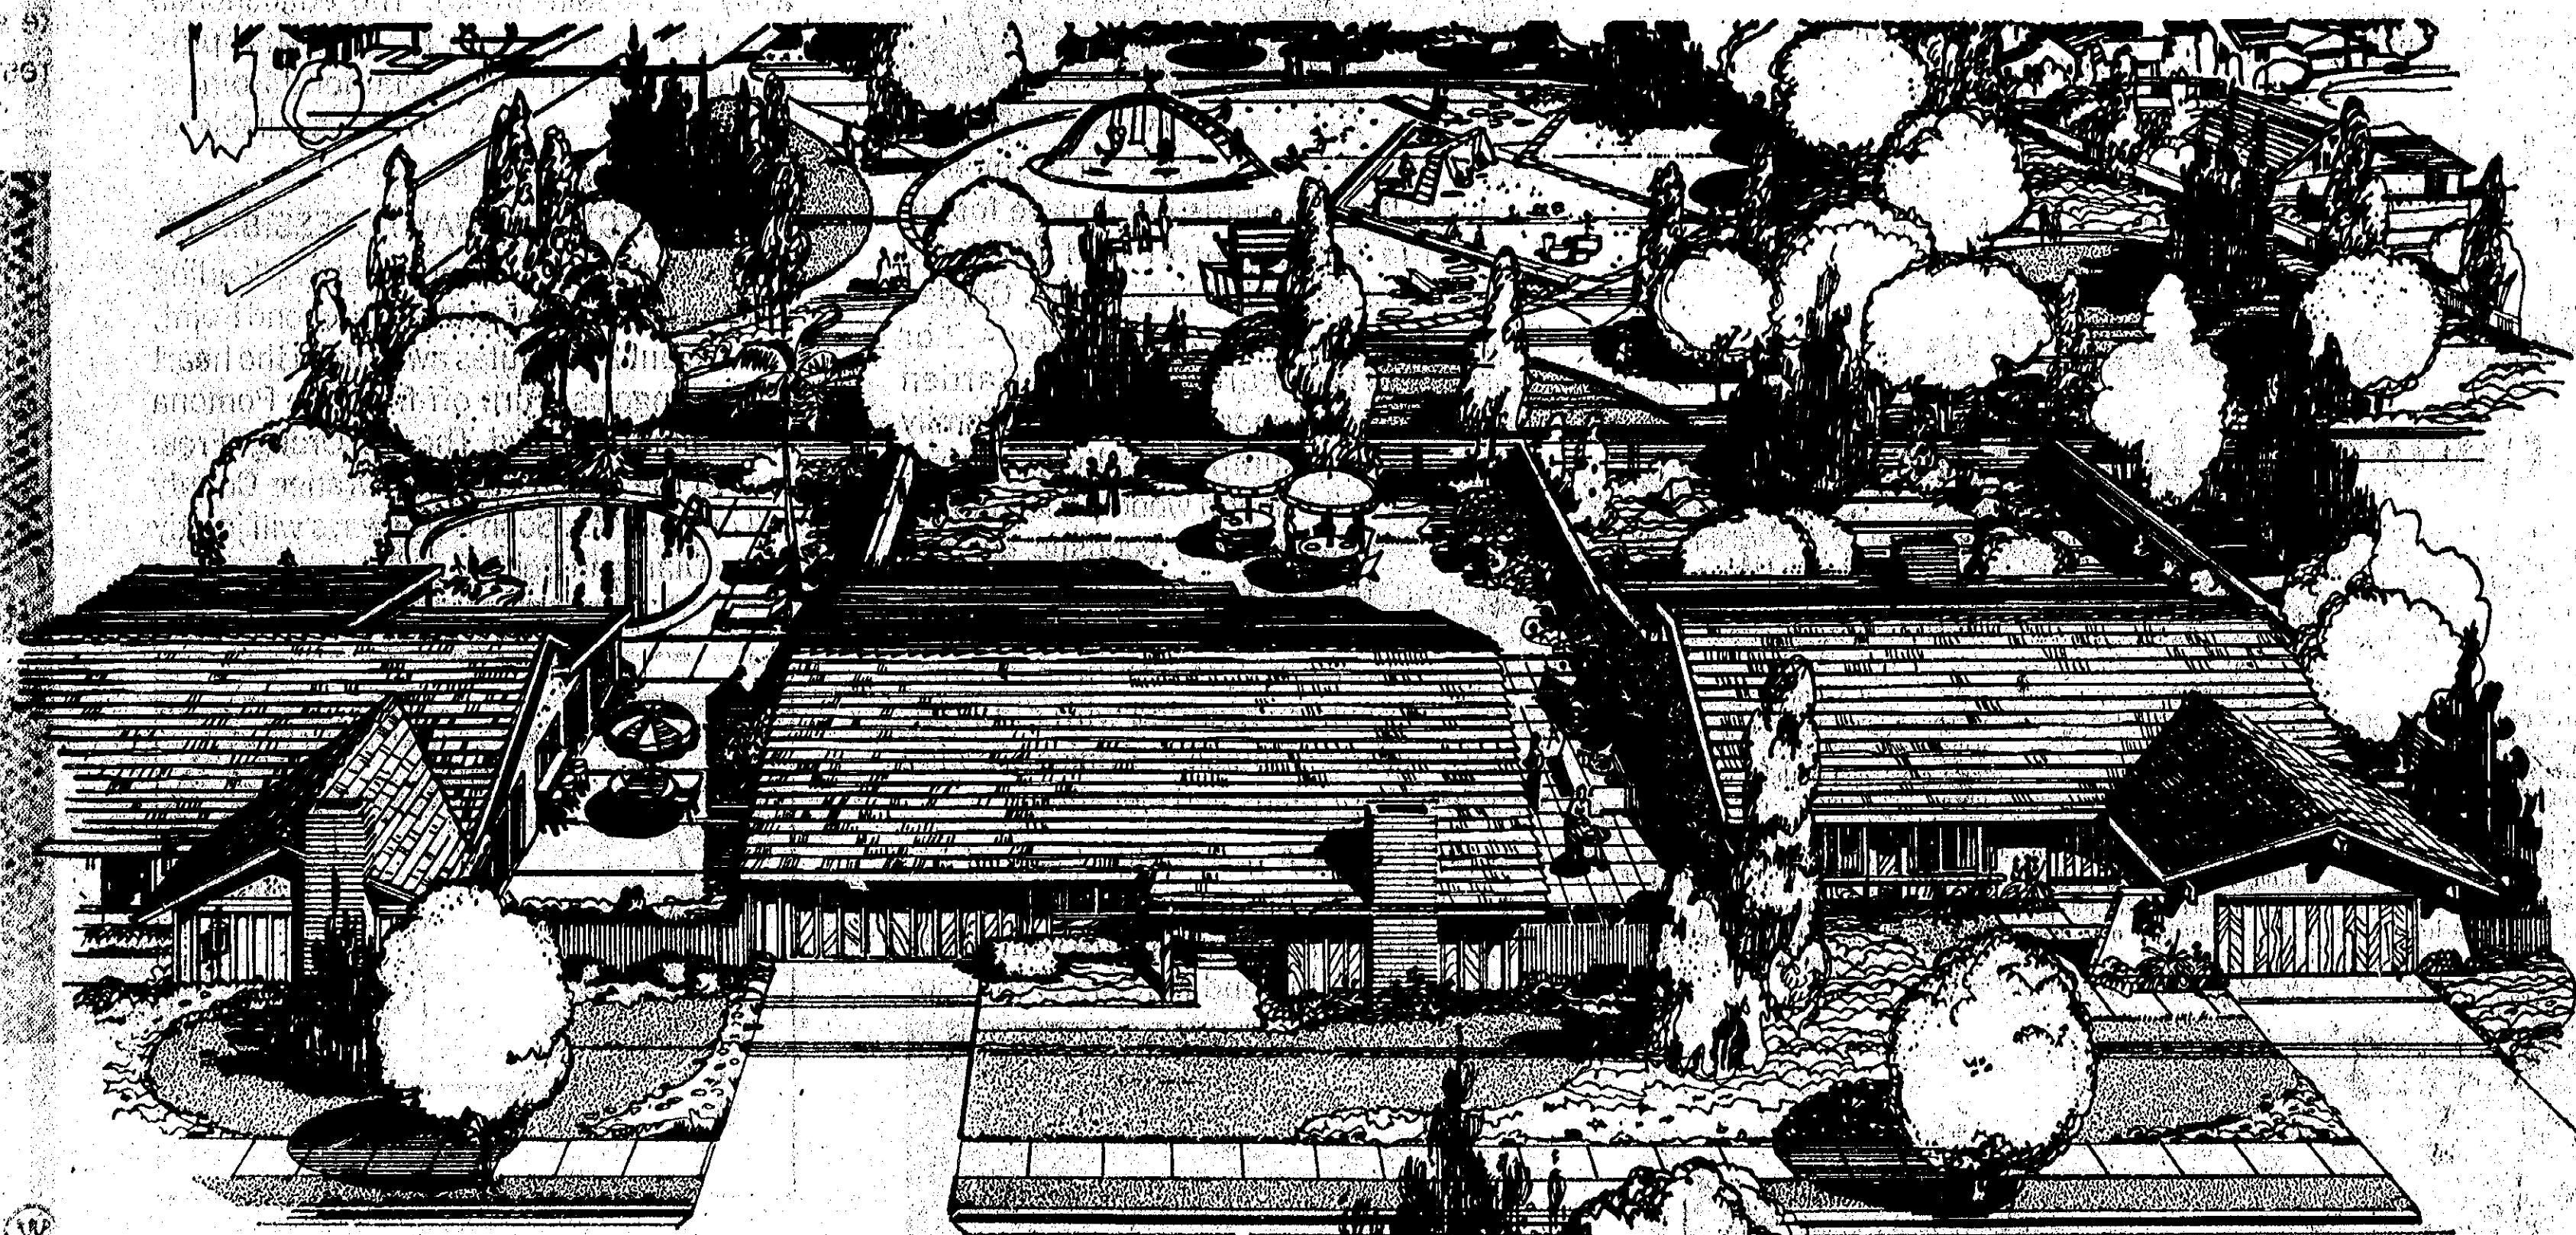

Good luck to you. You're a real novelty, a home owner who actually does own his home!

Another Quality Development By PBS

Here's Glimpse of 'Bleak' Aerospace Community

SEATTLE (U) — Few spots glowed brighter on the nation's economic map in 1968 than Washington state. Now a scant two years later, few are bleak.

This is particularly true in the Seattle area, home of Boeing Co., world's largest builder of commercial jetliners.

Why references are made to the area as being the "Appalachia of the West."

For four months the state has had the second highest unemployment rate in the United States — second only to Alaska and double the national average. June unemployment exceeded 110,000 out of a statewide work force of 1.4 million. The seasonally adjusted rate was 8.6 per cent. A year ago it was 2.2 per cent.

But in the Seattle metropolitan area, where 1.8 million of the state's 3.339 million residents live, things were worse.

One out of every 10 persons in the area's work force was out of a job this summer. Their numbers topped 70,000 and have continued to rise.

ECONOMISTS and Mayor Wes Uhlman believe the area unemployment rate may climb from its present 10 per cent to 15-17 per cent during the winter, pushing the number of jobless to around 110,000.

"Already King County (Seattle) has more than 100,000 out of a population of 1.13 million on welfare in some form or another," Uhlman said. "That figure will increase as those drawing unemployment compensation use up their benefits."

Washington recently raised unemployment benefits to a top of $72 a week and extended the 30-week payment period to 39 weeks.

What sent the state's economy into a critical tailspin?

Boeing, mainly. Its unexpectedly sharp cutbacks, forced by declining jetliner sales and failure to win the Bx supersonic manned bomber and other U.S. government contracts, have been particularly traumatic.

As Washington's largest single employer, Boeing has been the state's prosperity weathervane.

THE STATE'S second biggest industry, lumber and wood products, also has been in the doldrums because of the depressed housing market. Employment dropped from 66,800 in March 1969 to 62,600 in May 1970. Agriculture, the state's third mainstay, has been weak except for livestock.

Because the federal tight-money squeeze on the inflation balloon has had heavy impact on transportation and housing, the effect on this area, which relies strongly on both, has also been great — greater, say area spokesmen, than in other parts of the country.

A ray of sunshine penetrated the economic clouds with the announcement last week Boeing had won a potential $2 billion contract to develop the Airborne Warning and Control System, known as AWACS.

THE contract, awarded by the Air Force, calls for development and flight testing of two types of radars and radomes from eight engine versions of the Boeing 707. This first phase of the program will cost an estimated $170 million, of which $18.5 million was allocated immediately. Total cost of the 42-plane program is placed at about $2 billion.

The immediate lift contract will be mostly psychological, however, because the first phase will only increase the number of Boeing employees assigned to the program to 1,500 from 200, all from transfers within the company. The big impact would come from full-scale production, possibly four years away, when AWACS employment in the area would reach 9,000.

Meantime, consider these figures:

When Boeing was booming, it had a peak work force of 148,000 nationwide in March 1968 and 101,400 in the Seattle area in June 1968.

Since then the nationwide total has dropped to 75,000.

Boeing's Seattle-area employment figure at the end of June was 55,400. The June decline, alone, was 3,200. By the end of the year, Boeing is expected to lay off another 10,000

Seattle-area workers. This would shrink the company's work force to the lowest since 1956.

BOEING cuts have been across the board, affecting high-salaried management and technical personnel as well as production workers.

There are big traffic jams daily near the State Employment Securities Department building, where the jobless draw unemployment checks. Luxury cars can be seen among jalopies parked at the curbs.

Until the start of 1970, other manufacturing industry in the Puget Sound area was able to absorb the 20,000 lopped off by Boeing last year. But the fallout from this year's heavy Boeing cutbacks has affected both manufacturing and service industries, and they have taken a downward turn.

Shipbuilding, the area's second largest heavy industry, has dropped more than 2,000 from a high of nearly 9,000 workers. Stores have laid off hundreds of clerks. Residential construction in May was off 70 per cent to $6 million from a year earlier with permits for apartment house construction down 93.4 per cent.

BESIDES the new AWACS contract, two other bright spots can be found. The Seattle waterfront with some 18,000 full-time, year-around jobs, is bustling as foreign trade continues to grow. And tourism, which brought $375 million into the state in 1969, is up by about 20 per cent.

And William Lotto, economist for the Seattle Area Industrial Council, points out that from April 1969 to April 1970, when total employment declined just under 5 per cent average, weekly earnings rose from $157 to $169, or nearly 8 per cent.

"This meant there was just about as much money in the economy as before," Lotto says. "But people aren't spending it as freely. A lot of it is going to pay off old debts."

PEACEFUL STREET SCENE... Found At Diamond Point

Diamond Point--$28 Million Success Story at D' Bar

"It's not only better lumber, stone, land and location that the homebuyer seeks in his new home today — but complete livability in his new environment," says John Sands, resident project manager of Diamond Point Homes at Diamond Bar, by Occidental Petroleum Land and Development Corporation.

"This," he said, "is the major basis for the extraordinary $18,000,000 sales success of Diamond Point Homes. We have found that we were not only building and selling new homes, but a new kind of total family environment. This is our philosophy and it's behind every new home we build and each new community we plan for Southern California living."

RESPONSE to this point of view, he added, is borne out by the fact; at last count, 926 of the original 1,000 Diamond Point homes have been sold — leaving only 74 remaining units.

With the opening of the new Pomona freeway leading directly into Diamond Point, Sands expects that these available homes will also soon be sold. The new freeway brings this quiet city in the country to within a surprising 25 minute drive from the heart of Los Angeles.

Easy accessibility, Sands agreed, is one of the major Diamond Point attractions to the city dweller. Besides direct route via the new Pomona freeway, access roads to four other freeways including the Santa Ana, the San Bernardino, Corona and Riverside freeways are in or nearing completion.

"MODEL innovation," he pointed out, "is also the key. A wealth of choice new models and floor plans, with unique Occidental quality features, have proven irresistible at their present price range."

Among features reported by homebuyers to be the most desirable are garden kitchens with glass-walled vistas, garden bathrooms, 8,000-square-foot lots (many with views), attractive financing, and a recreation center for the enjoyment of all Diamond Point families.

"By blending modern convenience with old-fashioned comfort, we provide a happier home environment," says Sands, "and this is what our business today is all about. A home that is interesting, enjoyable 24 hours a day, seven days a week to grownups and children alike."

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $6.5 million experiment in home construction methods of the future has the go-ahead and work is slated to begin next month.

Charles R. LeMenager, director of the State Department of Housing and Community Development, announced federal authorities had agreed to purchase 60 acres of the old State Fairgrounds as the site of the 350 experimental housing units.

The cost of the land: $10,000 an acre, "which was our asking price," LeMenager said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Lead Co. will raise the price of antimony oxide 25 cents a pound to $1.63 at once. The oxide is used as a flame retardant for plastics and fabrics and in the manufacture of dyes, enamels and pigments.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — North American Rockwell Corp. has a new microelectronics subsidiary and has assigned the firm a $30 million contract for advanced microelectronic devices to Sharp Corp. of Osaka, Japan.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board has suspended an American Airlines plan for an experimental low priority trans-continental air cargo service that would have provided four-day service at rates 40 per cent below normal. The SACRAMENTO was one of 10 cities selected last December by U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as a site for "Operation Breakthrough," a program intended to develop cheaper mass-production construction methods to help hold down the soaring cost of home building.

The houses, LeMenager said, would range in price from $10,000 to $35,000 and would include several types, such as apartments for the elderly, family apartments, one-family homes, town houses and high-rise flats.

CAB said it would study the plan further before making a final ruling.

DALLAS (UPI) — Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., says it has reduced its bank debt by more than $35 million with the proceeds of its recent sale of its 75 per cent interest in Wilson Sporting Goods Co. This reduces the parent company's debt to $75 million and will cut interest costs by $3.2 million a year. LTV subsidiaries and affiliates have obtained renewals of around $214 million in bank loans on which the parent firm is not a guarantor.

Cerritos Preview for New Landmark Homes

Signal Landmark, Inc., builder of more than 9,000 Southern California homes, begins a preview opening today for its newest Landmark Homes subdivision in Cerritos.

The $3.5 million project of some 115 homes is located on South Street between Norwalk Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue.

The one and two-story homes range in price from $28,375 to $32,875 for plans that offer three and four bedrooms. Five different floor plans are available with a choice of more than 10 exterior designs included.

With the Landmark Homes-Cerritos preview, Signal Landmark is introducing its "creative side yard" concept to the area.

BOB JAMES, vice president and general manager, explained the concept this way:

"This innovation creates for families an additional five feet of usable side yard by expanding the area on one side of the lot approximately five feet beyond the normal lot line.

This extra five feet of yard space extends your lot all the way to the outside walls of your neighbor's home.

"This space, which was previously ignored and often times wasted by your neighbor because of its side yard location, now blends generously into your yard to create a completely usable double side yard."

The newly created side yard area may have a multitude of uses such as extended patio, pool area, trailer or boat storage, garden or secluded adult retreat or children's private play area.

MOST Landmark Home plans offer three car garages. One plan includes an unfinished area on the second level called the "imagination room." This room can be used as the homebuyer desires, whether it be extra bedrooms or a study and work room. It may be finished whenever the family feels the need for the additional space.

The new Pat Nixon Park (where the city of Cerritos has preserved the First Lady's childhood home) is only one block from the Landmark homesite, as is Carver Elementary School.

A junior high and high school are within a mile of the homes. The recently completed Artesia Freeway and the San Gabriel Freeway (605) are within two miles of the homesite.

FORCED air heating, fireplaces, acoustical ceilings and built-in TV antennas are included in all plans. Also included are rear yard fencing and patio kitchens with built-in range, hood, fan, oven, disposal and dishwasher.

The Cerritos development by Signal Landmark Inc., one of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles, is a private walled community with underground utilities.

To reach the new Landmark Homes' model area from the San Gabriel Freeway, take the South Street exit east. From the Artesia Freeway, take the Norwalk Boulevard exit south to South Street and

WARNER AT GOTHARD

Corsican Fourplexes, Fully Rented, Attract Buyers in H.B.

Buyers of new Corsican fourplexes at Warner and Gothard Avenues in Huntington Beach now are able to purchase fully rented buildings according to Jim Beard, partner, Kavanaugh-Beard Development Co., developers of the project.

"Due to our highly successful pre-rental program," Beard said, "we have a number of fourplexes which are fully rented now — and showing an immediate net spendable of better than 10 per cent on our average down payment."

A typical Corsican fourplex at the Warner Avenue and Gothard location will contain one large three-bedroom, two-bath unit; a pair of two-bedroom, two-bath units; and a deluxe single.

"We incorporate quality features often found only in the better homes," says Don Kavanaugh. "That's why people who rent prefer our units to the 'barracks type' of rental property. Our buildings resemble large homes — both from the street appearance and living capability. When you consider that we offer dwellings with gas appliances, 100 per cent nylon shag carpeting, dishwashers and stainless steel sinks in every unit, the living in a Corsican fourplex is simply excellent."

PRICES are $68,500 to $89,900.

Income-producing property with a built-in capability for tax shelter is attracting record interest among large investors and also those who are moderately capitalized.

"In these days when we are experiencing increased taxes through surcharges and increased state taxes," stated Beard, "our fourplexes offer the unique advantages of a home with income and tax shelter through the various approaches to depreciation."

The quality of our buildings justifies the rental schedules our owners enjoy. Our vacancy factor compares favorably with any in this area.

Today at our sales office in Huntington Beach at Warner and Gothard we will have available proven capitalization information and our staff will be on hand to explain our program to people who are considering this kind of investment for the first time."

Landmark-La Palma Units in 'Back to School' Sale

A special "back to school" sale is beginning this weekend for Landmark Homes in La Palma, according to Bob James, vice president and general manager for Landmark Homes.

"Only a few new homes in the entire La Palma area are ready for immediate move-in," Landmark sales counselor Carl Smith said. "Most of them are right here," he said, indicating the Landmark Homes' subdivision on Walker Street.

July and August are traditionally the months families with school children choose to move. Landmark has 30 new homes available for immediate occupancy in the final unit of this $2.6 million private walled community.

THE Landmark Homes are tabbed "family ready," meaning the purchase price, from $32,875 to $34,125, includes such items as draperies, carpets, landscaping and sprinklers in the front yard and complete rear yard fencing.

The inclusion of such items was figured to save the homeowner almost $2,000, since the builder purchased the items in quantity.

In addition, the homes include a built-in television antenna, patio kitchen with deluxe range, oven, disposal, hood, fan and dishwasher, shake roofs and concrete driveways. The Landmark Homes are served with underground utilities.

THE two-story, four and five-bedroom homes also have three baths and two and three-car garages. Fireplaces are in the living rooms and each home has a large separate family room.

The Landmark Homes in La Palma are located on Walker Street, between Orangethorpe and La Palma Avenues. The homes were built by Signal Landmark Inc., one of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles.

In addition, the firm is conducting water, sewerage and industrial waste systems study and design work and land development projects throughout Southern California.

Slogan Contest Winner in S.D.

A San Diego man won more than $50 in prizes for submitting the winning entry in a slogan contest for the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway. It was announced by Tramway board member Stanley O'Neill of Fontana, chairman of the contest.

O'Neill said the slogan best described the "year round pleasure of the Aerial Tramway ride."

Lake Forest Homes on Water Enjoy Tremendous Acceptance

A four-point sales program is credited with having created home sales of nearly $1/2 million at "The Lakes" area of Lake Forest in southeastern Orange County during the last two weeks, according to Ronald J. Ramos, marketing director.

Lake Forest is a new town community project of Occidental Petroleum Land and Development Corp.

Prospective buyers of "Lakeshore" homes, located on Orange County's largest residential lakes, are being asked to qualify as genuine "water-lovers," understand the value of premium water-oriented property, have an average annual income of at least $18,000, and be actively seeking a new home.

"Only 59 homes remain in the first unit due to the unprecedented response to the new sales program," Ramos said. "Of the $3.3 million in "Lakeshore" homes that have been involved, $2.7 million worth remain."

Four "Lakeshore" models are involved in the unique sales presentation. "The Islander" is a two-story, five-bedroom model with two-and-a-half baths and an all-purpose room on the second floor. A full balcony is built off of the master suite providing an unmatched lake panorama with Saddleback Mountain in the background.

"THE BAYSHORE" achieves a dramatic effect in the living room with an open-beam ceiling, uniquely-shingled fireplace, and all-glass frontal vista overlooking the lake.

The four bedrooms of the two-story, three-bath "Bayshore" are located on the second floor away from the activity centers of the home.

An additional bedroom or guestroom-den is located on the first floor with a private bath. A private scenic balcony is designed off of the master suite.

"THE LAKEVIEW," another two-story model, is designed with three bedrooms and two baths. As in all "Lakeshore" models, a clear view of the outdoors is seen through wide expanses of windows on the side of the house fronting on the lake.

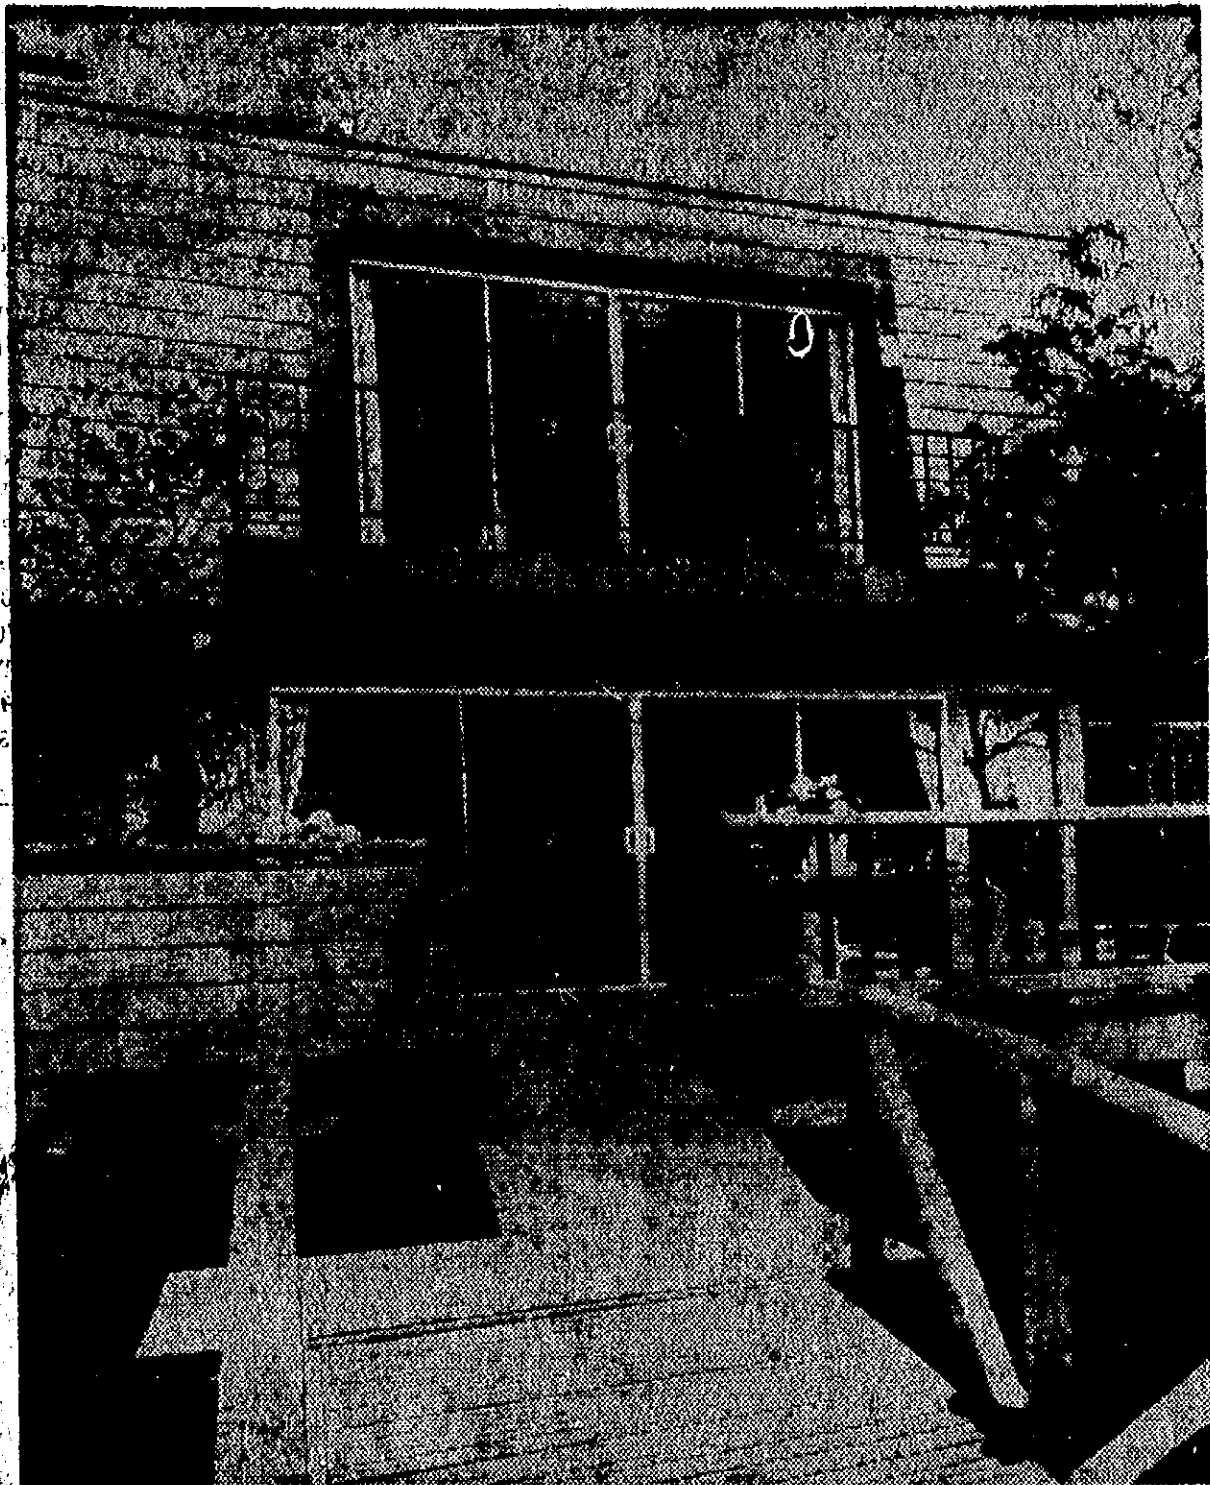

"The Lido," a masterfully-designed one-story, two-bedroom, two-bath home features built-in hi-low double-oven range, dishwasher, disposer, choice of laminated plastic or ceramic tile kitchen counter tops, custom-finished cabinets and choice of vinyl or vinyl-asbestos floor tile, all designed to liberate housewives from much of their kitchen labors.

The 62-million-gallon lake, with a shoreline of 2 1/2 miles, is stocked with freshwater game fish and equipped with paddle and sail boats exclusively for residents' recreation.

"In addition, homebuyers are presented with exclusive membership in the community's $500,000 Beach and Tennis Club, provided as the social and recreational center for the community," Ramos said.

"The Club is the popular meeting place for community dances, holiday parties, and social relaxation in the spacious lounges and game rooms."

To reach Lake Forest, and "Lakeshore" homes take the Santa Ana or San Diego Freeway to the El Toro offramp and follow directional signs.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The West Coast-wide Bank of California had a drop in earnings at mid-year, but board of directors chairman Charles De Bretteville said a gain was in sight.

Mesa Verde North Starts Third Unit

Construction has begun for the third unit of the Mesa Verde North subdivision of Suburbia Homes in Costa Mesa, according to Ron Roberson, assistant marketing director.

Thirty-one homes will be built in the third unit. The second unit of 30 homes at Mesa Verde North are in final stages of construction.

The zero-side-yard planning popular in the first unit, the second and third units also will be built using the industry's newest planning concept.

The zero-side-yard concept, also known as the garden home concept, places the home to one side of the lot and creates one large and usable side yard instead of two smaller side yards.

MESA VERDE North homes include such extras as carpeting, draperies, front landscaping with a tree and sprinklers, complete block wall fencing, concrete driveways and fireplaces.

The popular patio kitchen also includes complete built-in appliances. All Mesa Verde North homes have family rooms and some have cathedral ceilings and formal dining areas, along with the oversized master bedroom suites.

Built with the average wage earner in mind, the Costa Mesa homes are priced beginning at $28,450 with FHA, VA and conventional financing available.

THE community is just minutes from the South Coast Plaza shopping center as well as the beaches. Major employment centers are convenient because of the proximity to the San Diego and Newport freeways.

Luxurious pullmans with cultured marble tops, ceramic tile showers, forced-air heating, underground utilities, custom interior and exterior lighting fixtures are also included.

THE combination of price, location and design is a direct result of the expertise of the principals of PBS Corp.

Although the firm itself is only two years old, its founders are known for considerable acumen in the homebuilding industry.

Parker, president, and Glen Brengle, vice president, were responsible for the building of about 10,000 Southern California homes, before they joined forces on July 3, 1968.

In the last two years, Parker and Brengle have completed nearly 900 dwelling units, developing Century Homes in Santa Ana, Century Park in Fountain Valley, San Fernando Hills in Sylmar and Century Homes in Las Vegas.

THESE sites are still being developed, with the exception of the Santa Ana site, which sold out five months after its grand opening.

In addition, they are developing Century Knolls in San Jose, the Fountains apartments in Fountain Valley, the Cerritos Gardens apartments in Cerritos, and five mobile home parks in San Jose, Las Vegas and Colton, which will total more than 1,100 spaces.

Red-Faced Congressmen Caught in Tax Coverup

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some red faced congressmen are eating humble pie these days to avert a battle with the travel industry.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill to mollify the American Society of Travel Agents. ASTA had been stirred up because the conferees who wrote the new airline tax law sought to make them a party to an attempt to conceal an election-year boost in the airline ticket tax from 5 to 8 per cent.

The conferees wrote a curious clause in the law saying that "the ticket shall not show separately the amount paid for such transportation nor the amount of such taxes."

It imposed a $100 fine on any airline employee or travel agent who indicated on the ticket how much the tax was. Congressman Stratton would repeal this clause in a hurry.

According to Frank Hefter, ASTA's public relations director, no bones were made that this concealment requirement was written in because it isn't popular to raise taxes in an election year.

ASTA's lawyers already had decided the congressional conferees had outsmarted themselves.

They forgot that the travel agents could reveal the tax boost without writing the amount on the ticket as they have done in the past.

So ASTA is furnishing travel agents with a special slip to be issued with every ticket informing the passenger that the total price of the ticket includes a higher federal tax of 8 per cent. The ASTA lawyers say this will be perfectly legal.

perfectly legal.

"We also are preparing a memorial to Congress complaining about the hypocrisy of this concealment," Hefter said. "Congress has been busy in recent years passing full disclosure laws and truth in lending laws for business then it turns around and practices downright evasion with the public on a tax boost."

The ASTA spokesman said the society and most travel agents are heartily in sympathy with the tax boost, a salient part of the 10-year plan to create a national airport and airway trust fund of about $16 billion.

This money is to be used to improve the nation's air transportation just as the highway trust fund established in 1956 did so much to improve ground transportation.

NEWEST RECREATION CENTER... Ready For Summer Use

80 Per Cent of Decade's Jobs to Go to Nongraduates

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight out of ten jobs to be filled in the 1970s will be open to young workers with less than a college degree. The statement is from a Labor Department news release on training requirements for jobs.

"Of course I intend to send my kids to college. I don't know how I'll pay, but no youngster will have a chance in the future without a college degree." That statement could be made by any of several million parents.

The discrepancy in outlook has many ramifications for the individual and society, now and in the immediate future.

For the present: should families go deeply in debt to pay tuition for a youngster who really doesn't want to go to college?

For the future: will a degree make the recipient happier even if he doesn't get a better job?

And for society: is the present popular attitude that "everyone is entitled to a college education" really shortsighted?

Admittedly, the questions assume that education is solely for the purpose of obtaining a suitable job, which really is too narrow a definition. It is, however, one of the chief

Department makes a distinction between percentage growth and the growth in actual numbers. "More than two-thirds of reasons why Americans attend college."

IN DOING so, they are not misinformed. Professional and technical jobs, which almost always require college training, are expected to grow faster than any other occupational group, according to the Labor Department.

However, in announcing publication of the biennial occupational Outlook Handbook, the Labor Department says that the job openings arising from occupational growth and replacement needs through the 1970s will be in clerical, sales, service, blue collar and farm jobs that usually do not require a college degree.

"Fast-growing jobs within these occupational groups include electronic computer operator, business machine serviceman, cashier, hospital attendant, receptionist, stewardess and library technician."

THE distinction that many Americans do not make is this: jobs in the future may require more schooling than in the past, but that schooling does not necessarily mean more college education.

This is the outlook for some selected jobs that do not, at present, require college degrees, but which might demand vocational training or apprenticeships.

— Manufacturers' salesmen. "Very good opportunities." Annual openings of about 32,000 a year are expected during the 1970s.

— Police officers. "Very good opportunities. Cities will continue to increase the size of their police forces to meet the needs of growing population." Institutions also may expand their security forces.

— Electronic Computer Operating Personnel. Annual openings of 20,400. "Employment of computer and auxiliary equipment operators is expected to increase very rapidly as computers are adapted to new uses."

— Business Machine servicemen. "Very favorable job opportunities for those who have good mechanical ability and knowledge of electricity and electronics." Annual openings of about 8,500.

The developers of the Los Angeles Industrial Center have celebrated an anniversary, with two candies on the cake, and two million square feet on the maps.

pton on June 18, 1968, in a joint venture with the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Since then, the LAIC has become one of the fastest growing industrial parks in the nation. More than 2,100,000 square feet of construction is either up, underway, or on the drawing boards.

Included in the new contracts are the Sea-Tac Travelodge, Seattle-Tacoma Airport; Harbor Island Travelodge, San Diego; El Paso Travelodge, Texas; Ala Moana Travelodge, Honolulu, Hawaii; Lawrence Travelodge, Kansas; Santa Barbara Beach Travelodge, Califor-

6-MONTH SENTENCE

Theater Owner to Appeal Jail

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

William Wall, Long Beach theater operator, will appeal to Superior Court the six-month jail sentence against him on the Municipal Court finding that a movie shown by his theater was obscene.

Judge J. Merrill Lilley also assessed a fine of $1,000 plus $250 court costs against the Alleycat Theater Corp. of which Wall is president, and which operates the Roxy Theater on Ocean Boulevard.

Wall was not in court Friday when sentence was passed but was represented by attorney Burton Marks.

Charges were filed against Wall and the company in connection with the film "Man And Wife."

This was one of three potential cases against Wall. Pending before Judge Charles S. Litwin is a request for a search warrant to authorize police to confiscate another movie, "Pornography Copenhagen, 1970."

AND A CITY vice squad captain said Friday night police have submitted a request to the city prosecutor's office for court action against the Roxy Theater's current offering, "He and She."

Passing sentence, Judge Lilley said the movie "Man and Wife" is "nothing more than an appeal to shameful and morbid interest. I do not hesitate to say it is utterly, totally without social importance. . . . To pretend that the picture is educational is absurd."

"To say that no one is compelled to see the picture is not a satisfactory reply," he said. "Everyone in this city, through the advertising, is aware of the nature of this film, and this offends, insults and frightens the great majority of the people who love and have pride in their city."

NEW FIRE CHIEF ASSUMES POST

Judd, 53, came from the Los Angeles City Fire Department after 28 years of service in various capacities. He was battalion chief for the city's west San Fernando Valley headquarters station at Tarzana when Santa Ana City Manager Carl J. Thornton picked him as chief from a field of 32 candidates.

Chief Judd said he is "exploring possible changes" in the department organization.

administration officials are serving on the board.

Rabbi Sidney S. Guthman, chairman of the 15-member Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement, will preside. "The purpose of the meeting is to establish lines of communication and exchange dialogue with motivated students on the campus, and to provide an opportunity to gain insight into activities, programs and problems of the college student today," Rabbi Guthman said.

Members of the City Council, the various city advisory boards and some department heads have been invited, he said.

The CACCI originally proposed the meeting between college students and city officials, and was invited by councilmen to set up the session.

Rabbi Guthman said a subcommittee had met with student and faculty representatives at the college "to assure that the meeting will be meaningful and constructive."

KIDNEY REJECTION SEEN

Dad Sees Julie Suffer, 'Doesn't Look Too Good'

By GEORGE LAINE
Staff Writer

One week ago surgeons at Colorado General Hospital at Denver transplanted a kidney from the body of a Texas drowning victim into the frail body of 12-year-old Julie Nielson of Long Beach.

Less than 24 hours later, doctors — and the girl's family — were exuberant because the slight but smiling child was "doing very well so far."

Monday of this week, however, the doctors noted that Julie's system was not adapting to the new organ as well as it should have. In fact, tests indicated, the youngster's body was doing everything it could to reject the new kidney.

Doctors increased medication to Julie each time her system recorded a trace of rejection.

"Right after the transplant," explained Dee Nielson, Julie's father, "all of the readings affecting the kidney were low. But they started to rise a little at a time and they've been going up every day. There's been no slackening in the rise, it just keeps going up."

One key to the success of a kidney transplant is the capability of the new organ to handle blood, urea and nitrogen — also called BUN — in near-normal fashion. But Julie's new kidney wasn't handling these.

"It doesn't look too good," said Nielson Friday. "It appears the kidney is trying to reject. They're doing everything they can here (Denver) but her blood pressure is up and the doctors aren't saying much."

Julie, although in considerable pain as a result of the nonperformance by the kidney, was allowed to leave the Denver hospital briefly Friday for a look at the outdoors.

"That did her lots of good," her father said. "She smiled."

But the child — whose plight produced a massive outpouring of concern among her classmates and Long Beach residents of all ages — still faces many days of close attention by doctors who are trying to determine whether her new kidney will ever function properly.

Dee Nielson — and his youngest daughter, Janis, who received one of her father's two kidneys in a 1966 transplant operation at the same hospital — will leave Denver for Long Beach today. His wife, Mary, will remain at the hospital to continue the bedside vigil she has kept since the July 9 surgery.

Separated by hundreds of miles, the family doesn't believe it is truly apart.

"All of our thoughts, our hopes, our prayers are together — at Julie's bedside," the father said.

Smog—Is It A Losing Battle? I, P-T Series Begins Sunday

Deukmejian Hits UC Pay Denial

Sen. George Deukmejian Friday described as "shortsighted and unwise" the recent denial of a pay raise to University of California and state college faculty.

Speaking before the quarterly convention of the California State Builders Exchange at the Edgewater Hyatt House, Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said he believed denial of the pay raises received by all other state employees would "help to fertilize the ground upon which the troublemakers hope to grow militant faculty unions."

The State Legislature deleted faculty salary raises of five per cent from the 1970-71 budget for what were described by some as disciplinary reasons in response to some teachers' participation in campus disorders.

Deukmejian said the theory behind the pay raise deletion was that " . . . by hitting them in the pocketbook, the great 'silent majority' of responsible faculty would be moved to take a firm stand against the small minority of students and faculty members who stimulate campus unrest."

"I do not support that theory," Deukmejian said.

"I am as upset and as angry about the disorders on our campuses as anyone, but I believe that a meat-axe approach that slashes all parts of the faculty simply drives the good ones away — and the troublemakers make more gains."

50,000 Witnesses at Stadium

The California Angels have not yet had it like this, but then they've not yet brought a pennant to Anaheim Stadium of a crowd approaching 50,000. The baselines are rimmed with thousands of flowers — yellow, orange, pink and lavender. A fountain covers home plate, its streams of water changing color to the moods emanated by a 100-piece orchestra. A 56 by 24-foot stage — decorated with three lawn swings — occupies second base, its speaker's platform slowly rotating to face the thousands of Jehovah's Witnesses filling the stadium (photo above) for the group's "Men of Goodwill" district assembly.

A major event of the assembly was a mass baptism (photo at right) Friday morning at 1343 South West Street in Anaheim, where a staff of 50 conducted an hours-long mass baptism of 1,060 persons. Those baptized, having completed six months of Bible study and training in door-to-door Bible teaching, are recognized thereafter as ordained ministers of Jehovah's Witnesses. The assembly closes Sunday, M. G. Henschel, presiding minister over U.S. Jehovah's Witnesses, spoke at the baptism service and addressed stadium assemblies three times. Two huge tents were raised on the stadium parking lots for serving meals to delegates at the rate of 6,000 meals hourly.

The first branch welfare office in Orange County — at 9191 Westminster Ave. in Garden Grove — will be open for business at 8 a.m. Monday.

Additional offices will be opened in Santa Ana, Anaheim and Costa Mesa within the next few weeks, she said.

Stereo and Tapes Taken from Auto

Gust Martinez, of 1706 Sherman Place, told Long Beach police Friday that burglars forced open a wind wing of his car while it was parked near his home and removed a stereo player and tapes valued at $144.

After 22 months of wrangling over what kind of mechanical or electronic vote-tallying equipment Orange County should have, the Voting Systems Task Force has the county's thanks. But not its confidence.

County officials themselves will choose the equipment without considering the Task Force recommendation — whatever it was.

County supervisors, who dismissed the task force with an unemotional "thank you," then asked County Clerk William E. St. John to recommend what machines the county should try out at the November general election.

St. John said he will have a recommendation next Tuesday.

It was St. John who had proposed that a committee of citizens be charged with advising the county on the mechanizing of the vote-tallying procedures. The county's two Coleman electronic tabulators have proven accurate but too slow.

Task force members began disagreeing almost from the start. Differences became severe and the tension obvious even in their public meetings and official appearances before the Board of Supervisors.

After 21 months' study of the various vote-counting equipment — and wrangling all the while — the task force decided on the AVM automatic voting machine.

Or so it thought. The group retracted this recommendation after examination of the record of their meeting showed such a welter of motions, counter-motions and amendments that no one could decipher what happened.

Then the task force came up with a recommendation that the county lease the Cubic electronic vote-tallying machines for 40 per cent of the county's precincts; this would cost $60,000 as a one-time experiment.

That decision was 4-to-3, and it was challenged even as it was reported to the supervisors. The whole dissension was summed up by Hans Vogel, task force member:

"We're divided in our final decision."

Did Lutherans Condone Sex Outside Marriage?

An article in the conservative magazine Christianity Today entitled "True and False Ecumenism" includes this strong excerpt from a book by Princeton theologian John Mackay:

"When Christian unity is equated with institutional oneness and episcopal control, and when both these are regarded as indispensable for real unity, let this not be forgotten: the most unified ecclesiastical structure in Christian history was the Hispanic Catholic Church, which was also the most spiritually sterile and the most disastrously fanatical."

Ministries, and was adopted after prolonged consideration and numerous amendments by the 695 delegates.

Noting that "powerful forces of social change, joined with discoveries in the medical and life sciences, influence all aspects of human condition," the introductory statement said that "the church is concerned not only with specific issues and controversies, but with basic Christian understanding of man's sexuality."

An amendment offered from the floor and approved, added this paragraph to the introductory statement: "Because the Lutheran Church in America holds that sexual intercourse outside the context of the marriage union is morally wrong, nothing in this statement on sex is to be interpreted as meaning that this church either condones or approves premarital or extramarital sexual intercourse."

The key section was one entitled "Marriage," and here is the pertinent portion:

"Christian faith affirms marriage as a covenant of fidelity — a dynamic, lifelong commitment of one man to one woman in a personal and sexual union . . . A marital union can be legally valid yet not be a covenant of fidelity, just as it can be a covenant of fidelity and not a legal contract . . . Marriage is ordained by God as the structure of the created order. Thus the sanction of civil law and public recognition are important and beneficial in marriage, as checks against social injustice and personal sin. The marriage covenant, therefore, should be certified by a legal contract, and Christian participation should seek the blessing of the church."

Does the section which says that marriage "can be" a covenant of fidelity and not a legal contract warrant the conclusion that the LCA approves non-marital sex? What do you think?

Since abortion is in the local news, the LCA stands on abortion is worth noting: "Persons considering abortions are encouraged to consult with their physicians and spiritual counselors. This church upholds its pastors and other responsible counselors and persons who conscientiously make decisions about abortion."

While not exactly a clarion call on either side of the issue, this certainly does not unequivocally

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?

All right thinking Americans deplore the direction in which our country seems headed; yet, like Nero of old, we fiddle while Rome burns. We coddle the criminal and abuse the policeman — who risks his life to keep our city from becoming a jungle. We wring our hands over the rebellion of youth, yet blandly ignore the ever increasing sale of drugs and the more and more contaminating filth flowing from publication houses and movie studios.

We complain because a once timorous plea for equal opportunity has become a thunderous roar, yet refuse to realize that multitudes of our people are tormented by frustration and made desperate by conditions in a society wherein all do not have equal rights.

All right thinking Americans, then, need to be interested, understanding, compassionate, involved, but most of us are pretty poor soil in which to grow such virtues. And so we come finally, as we always do, to our need for God. His Christ and His Church.

Quit living as if God were dead. Meet Him at some Christ honoring church tomorrow morning.

Sincerely,
Frank M. Kepner, Pastor

The ROYAL LIPIZZAN STALLION SHOW
featuring "THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF HORSES"

Pat Boone, the Teens, and a 'Miracle'

By LES RODNEY

"I wanted to prove to the young people that there can still be miracles, that if we dare God, He will turn around and dare us—now, today, not only in the days of the Old Testament."

Blue eyes agleam with enthusiasm, Ann Kiemel, youth director at First Nazarene, the church on Clark Avenue with the striking trio of crosses, related the little miracle of July 11th.

She wanted to cap a two week evangelistic "summer offensive" by the church's young people with something very special. Like getting actor Pat Boone to come to the church and visit with them.

"I was told he gets $5,000 and $10,000 for an appearance, even a religious-type appearance," she said. Some smiled and allowed it was nice to see someone aim high. She was young and dreamed big dreams. Miss Kiemel made connections, found out where Boone was, and shot off a glowing letter about the First Nazarene young people and their work, her own feeling about practical miracles, and her belief in the need "to show that God can heal our land, only He." She asked Boone if he could come—for free.

The popular entertainer, who recently completed filming the movie "The Cross and the Switchblade," was in Las Vegas. He would return to Los Angeles early Saturday, the 11th, and on Sunday was off to Europe with his family. Miss Kiemel missed a phone call from him on Monday the 6th. She was unable to reach him back.

"Oh, I was in a gush about having missed the call," she said. "But I still insisted we were going to get him."

Tuesday and Wednesday went by. Early Thursday afternoon, the phone rang, and she didn't let it ring more than once. It was Boone. Miss Kiemel's belief in miracles of faith, her vibrant certainty that God was alive now as ever, and not to be reduced to merely human dimensions, had struck a nerve with the star, a practicing Christian.

It was quite a climax to the "summer offensive" devised by Miss Kiemel. For two weeks, an average of 50 of the high school-age youngsters devoted their days from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. After a seminar on attitude, faith and self image, the boys and girls sallied forth each day door-to-door within a mile radius of the church, wearing "Ask Me" tags.

The basic message was that the most exciting thing in the world was that "Jesus is our friend," and that they had personally discovered this.

It can be scary knocking on doors, for any cause. "I dared them to give up everything for these two weeks," the vibrant Miss Kiemel explained.

"We had plenty of Shirley along to share the experience. Not only that, he contacted popular Albie Pearson, the 5 foot 5 inch sparkplug who not only became the smallest player in the big leagues, but won Rookie of the Year honors. Albie also showed.

It can be scary knocking on doors, for any cause. "I dared them to give up everything for these two weeks," the vibrant Miss Kiemel explained.

"We had plenty of slammed doors," said Rick Conklin, 16, who attends Los Alamitos High. "We avoided any arguments. We just expressed ourselves politely."

"But," added Darlene Forbes, 16, a Wilson High student, "we also had many people say they were so glad to see so many teens doing something like this, not just something for themselves."

There were all kinds of rebuffs. One man said "I'm too old for excitement" as he closed the door on them.

"Every once in a while," related Rick, "when it seemed to be very discouraging, we would come across a Christian who would encourage us. It seemed it was God's way of giving us new strength."

Which worked both ways, Miss Kiemel noted. "They also got new strength seeing young people doing this."

Rick got through to serious talking with one teenager, and his dad as well. "They both said they would accept Christ in their lives," he reports. It was a highlight for him.

Said Darlene, earnestly: "I feel that we planted many seeds, even if we don't always see the immediate results."

"If," said Rick, "in one day I found one person who seriously listened, I went home feeling uplifted."

Pert Darlene pondered the experience. "It does something to you, when you have the courage to walk up and knock on a door and share what you feel."

The young people also went to the beaches a few times to offer their testimony to other teens.

After all that, it was inconceivable that Pat Boone would not come to First Nazarene Church, for no fee, on the only day he had in his schedule before leaving for Europe.

Well, wasn't it?

THEIR EFFORTS WERE CROWNED

CONFIDENT LIVING

Love Is Needed to Live Creatively

By NORMAN V. PEALE

A far-out militant type youth consulted me saying he didn't feel well.

"Why see me? I'm no doctor? A physician is the man you want to see."

"I've already seen a doctor and was referred to you. A stupid guy he is too, for he told me I'm sick because of my thoughts and that I had better do something about it."

"Smart doctor," I replied.

We went into the boy's thinking in depth and found the source that was really poisoning him. He was full of hate and I mean packed full of hate and nothing else. He hated the establishment, the government, his parents, everybody including himself.

"Only a good prolonged dose of love can cure you," I told him. We tried to teach him how to empty out hate and substitute love and good will. He was a tough case and it wasn't easy for him to change his thoughts and attitudes, but ultimately he came through.

LOVE IS a word that has been much abused and has really taken a beating. It is even used as an excuse for the most permissive acts possible. Some groups distort so-called "love" of their fellow man as an excuse for everything from arson to riots.

But the fact is that love is a first in everything. Without love I am nothing, you are nothing, the world is nothing. Love is basic.

As a matter of fact, the individual can wither and die unless he has love, both for himself and for other people. One of the greatest books on this subject was by the famed psychiatrist, the late Smiley Blanton, with whom I founded American Foundation of Religion and Psychiatry.

In his memorable book, "Love or Perish," Blanton says, "To say that one will perish without love does not mean that everyone without adequate love dies. Many do, for without love the will to live is often impaired to such an extent that a person's resistance is critically lowered and death follows. But most of the time, lack of love makes people depressed, anxious, and without zest for life. They remain lonely and unhappy, without friends or work they care for, their life is a barren treadmill, stripped of all creative action and joy."

To live creatively it is imperative to love. In some youth movements today, in spite of the bizarre qualities that offend some people there seems to be a sort of gentle religious emphasis to the extent that they share, touch, reach out — they have communication. They try to draw together, as if to defend themselves from a seemingly loveless civilization that, as they say, "shattered them."

The kind of love we are speaking about is a deep feeling for people. It is the kind of good will that helps you accept your fellow men, all of them, whatever their condition in life or whoever they are, and feel for them as part of yourself. Love is the expression of that feeling by action, by reaching out to your neighbors.

Today we are constantly being barraged with gloomy stories about the population crisis. We are being warned that this world, not too many years hence, will be unable to support all the people that inhabit it. Daily we are aware of the discomfort that can be created by the thousands of people who surround us, the bewildering swarms of human beings on city streets, in trains and buses and on the highways.

YET THESE are all the neighbors we are expected to love as ourselves. And that we must do, for it is true that the individual actually will wither and die without love, a nation suffering shattered love could deteriorate also. But love can transform an entire group, perhaps even a nation.

The action of three high school students if magnified could be the answer. In a large city high school they compacted to carry on a quiet war of love against a teacher who was harsh and unfair. Instead of emotionally reacting to her, which would have been natural, they quietly began loving her and secretly prayed for her in the classroom. In time she actually became a different person and the entire school felt the impact. Maybe our country would also if we all got together in a quiet love demonstration.

Radical Answer Only Seen by Latin Churches

THONON, France — Lutheran World Federation Press — Two Colombians — a Protestant layman and a Roman Catholic priest — agreed here that there seems no answer to the poverty and exploitation of Latin America's masses short of "a totally radical solution."

Dr. Orland Fals-Borda, a Presbyterian sociologist who is program director of the U.S. Research Institute for Social Development in Geneva, and Father Rene Garcia, who works in a slum outside Bogota and is a spokesman for the radical Golconda Movement of Colombian priests, addressed the World Encounter of Lutheran Youth. Their subject: "Towards a More Human World."

The term subversive has had various meanings in history, he said, noting that in Latin America it has been legally defined as any attack on dignitaries, on religion, the army, private property or currency.

"We forget that many subversives have later become heroes or saints," he said.

In what he termed a sociological definition, Dr. Fals-Borda said subversion accompanies or foreshadows a significant process of economic or social development. It appears, he added, at strategic moments when a new society is born or an old one is subject to re-structuring.

Agreeing that foreign imperialism is the major obstacle to the development of Latin America, the two Colombians advocated the overthrow of those governments that profit from under-development. This cannot be done from outside, they said, declaring that Christians must aid efforts to change exploitative systems in favor of ones that will serve all segments of society.

condemn all abortions.

Most decisive and forcefully worded of all the adopted positions in this area was that on birth control: "People have a right not to have children without being accused of selfishness or a betrayal of the divine plan; and every child has a right to be a wanted child. All persons are entitled to receive from governmental and voluntary agencies information about conception control."

One can agree or disagree, but he has to concede that the LCA Board showed a certain amount of courage in wading into these questions.

DESCRIBING HIMSELF as a "non-churchgoing Christian," Rich Hughes, a student, forwards a copy of a letter he sent to Billy Graham this week:

"Dear Dr. Graham: I read in Newsweek that you said in the Tennessee crusade, in reference to youth dissent, that 'the Bible teaches us to obey authority.' Well, my question to you, sir, is how come we denounce young dissenters here against the immoral Vietnam war and tell them to obey authority, and cheer for young dissenters against immoral authority in the Communist countries? I would also like to say, Jesus did not agree with you, in regard to the authorities of Jerusalem."

Latin America, Father Garcia was particularly critical of several North American companies which he said "get all the riches."

Stallion Show Packs Arena

By ELISE EMERY
Staff Writer

A near-capacity audience in Long Beach Arena gave a royal welcome Friday night to the Royal Lipizzan Stallion Show.

While horses, whether in parade or on show, traditionally draw larger audiences in Long Beach than do musicians, dancers or other performing artists, these highly-trained beauties deserved their acclaim.

Through 14 acts they demonstrated the skill and talent that place them among the super-stars of show business. Talent, as in human performers, is a real factor. Only a select few horses have aptitude for the advanced training of haute ecole — that intricate series of maneuvers and "airs above the ground" best known in the Spanish Riding School of Vienna.

The snowy white Lipizzans are billed as stars of the production, but they were challenged as equals by Andalusians from Spain and America's Morgan High School Horses and Albino.

ZARANZA, AN ANDALUSIAN, stallion trained in Portugal for the bull ring — a beige horse with silken, white mane — was joy in motion, the spirit of every boy who has leaped exuberantly on a hillside.

In dressage, too, the Andalusians and American horses earned honors. It was Albert Ostermaier, who owns stables in North Hollywood, who was the audience's favorite rider. Among horses he rode was his Aleros-Convertano, sired by the stallion given to Gen. George Patton by Col. Podhajsky, head of the Spanish Riding School, in gratitude for Patton's rescue of the Lipizzans during World War II.

The concluding act, the Quadrille performed by seven Lipizzans and an Andalusian, was as beautifully choreographed and danced as a classic ballet.

The haute ecole maneuvers done so brilliantly by the Lipizzans, were not, however, developed as show pieces. They go back to ancient times when battles were fought on horseback. The leaps, rearings, jumps, spins and powerful kicks while the horse is in midair were lethal weapons which the warrior controlled.

NOW, THE HORSES wear rubber horseshoes to perform on a special floor and are guided by musical cues and spotlights as well as by riders.

The weaknesses of the show are human, not equine. A scene designed to recreate the elegance of Old Vienna with beautiful ladies riding in an open carriage, comes off shabbily. For no discernible reason, the orchestra plays not the lilting music of Vienna, but "Surf With the Fringe on Top" and "Shall We Dance?"

There were two comedy acts, performed by people, not horses, that amused the children but were corny, not funny. The vocalist was having a bad night.

None of this dampened the audience. Only the top balcony was empty, in contrast to opening night July 10 at the Inglewood Forum where the house was two-thirds full.

Though it's slow-paced in spots, this is a fine show for horse experts and horse know-nothings, and for the entire family. The box office reports almost sold-out houses for performances tonight and Sunday afternoon.

KRIPS RETURNS TO BOWL

New Drama in Beethoven

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

For the fourth time in as many summers, Hollywood Bowl heard yet another "Eroica" Symphony Thursday night. The conductor was Josef Krips, who also led this, Beethoven's third Symphony, in the Bowl two years ago (July 9, 1968).

Beethoven, I think, will survive overexposure. So will we survive frequent hearings of the "Eroica." The particular joy we found in it Thursday was that it sounded like a new piece.

KRIPS, notably more so than he did two summers ago, has heightened the work's drama by limiting climaxes, clarifying instrumental textures (most noticeably by coaxing the woodwinds into patterns of dynamic modesty), and attempting to restore natural balances between the orchestra's choirs.

Thanks to the most effective microphoning-amplification of the 1970 Bowl season thus far, and no thanks to the fliers of the nine separate aircraft that passed overhead, Krips' re-thought "Eroica" became, with the full cooperation of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, one of the more cherishable memories this Beethoven bicentennial year has brought us.

Like all cherishable memories, it is hard to analyze, but some particulars can be noted: No attempt was made to theatricalize, either by instrumental overinflation or by conductorial posing, the obvious drama — particularly in the opening movement and the Funeral March — which resides in the score. Between the heights of the even-numbered movements, Krips chose to ignore the many opportunities other conductors have found to make the Scherzo "interesting." I could go on.

The first half of this all-

Students to Search for Uranium History

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Sixteen Southland students are leaving this week on a unique prospecting expedition into the uranium mining country of Colorado and Utah.

They'll be prospecting for miners, not ore.

The students are part of the Colorado Plateau Uranium Oral History Project.

THEY MAY collect enough material from interviewing participants in the Southwest's great uranium boom to fill 400 books.

"We'll collect enough history of the uranium mining area, its people and life style to fill a small room," predicts Dr. Gary L. Shumway, a historian at California State College at Fullerton who is heading the project.

The project is jointly sponsored by the Fullerton College and the University of Utah.

"Time is important," Shumway says, "because so few people kept records of their dreams, frustrations and successes. If the people who built and worked the area get away, a vast supply of knowledge which has real historical importance will be lost forever."

He said that many of the early prospectors, miners, townspeople and company officials are dying of old age or radiation-inflicted lung cancer.

Those who are left may soon scatter to all parts of the country, since the Atomic Energy Commission no longer guarantees purchase of uranium ore.

"These people found and mined uranium deposits, achieved affluence, built and left towns and made important decisions that determined the development of a highly significant industry," Shumway says.

"Only from their accounts of their own experiences will we be able to get much of the information we need to know what life was like and to understand why and how things happened."

THE TOPICS that students will research range from the effect of rampant urbanization of Moab, Utah, by the uranium industry to the AEC's role in the mining boom.

Others will research the birth and death of mining towns, the role of the mining corporations and the effect of success on individual prospectors.

Postal Station Bids Sought

The U.S. Post Office is seeking competitive bids to build and lease a proposed East Long Beach postal station on Anaheim Street near Temple Avenue.

Postmaster General Winton Blount said bids must be submitted to E. L. Meek of Los Angeles, the post office's real estate officer, by Aug. 14.

Cmdr. Graves will speak at the Chamber's luncheon meeting at the Indian Village Restaurant, 4020 Pacific Coast Highway. Reservations can be made by calling the Chamber.

Sutton's Best Is Too Much for Mets, 1-0

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

The attention was focused on Wes Parker after his 10th-inning single drove home the winning run Friday night, but all Wes wanted to talk about

There was great pitching out there tonight."

Seaver pitched nine scoreless innings, scattering five Dodger hits and at one point he retired 15 batters in order.

But the Dodgers forced Met skipper Gil Hodges' hand in the 10th. Gil removed Seaver for pinch hitter Dave Marshall with the winning run at third. But Sutton struck out Marshall, the former Lakewood High star, and the Mets brought in lefthander Tug McGraw to pitch the 10th.

Manny Mota started the winning flurry with a pinch single to right. Sutton advanced him to second with a sacrifice bunt and then Bill Grabarzewitz was walked intentionally.

Willie Davis followed with an infield single, a high hopper behind the mound and Willie D. Beat it out to load the bases.

Parker was next. He lined a shot to right and Mota walked home with the winning run.

"Like I said, I'm glad I got the opportunity," Parker said. "That Seaver is a heckuva tough pitcher so I wanted another shot out there."

Wes got it, too, and it gave the Dodgers their 16th win in the last 21 games and their 20th in the last 27.

The RBI was Parker's 67th this year, only one shy of his career high set last year. It's just one year since Parker was shelved for a month because of his appendicitis attack and he's celebrating the anniversary with a sizzling bat.

In the last 17 games he's collected 23 hits in 63 at bats, a .365 pace, and has driven in 15 runs. He's hiked his average to .299.

Sutton, his arm soaking in a bucket of ice, was asked if it was his best pitching performance.

"This year... definitely," smiled Sutton. "But the one-hitter I had in San Francisco last year was probably my best ever."

"This club (the Mets) gets a lot of base hits and runs you into the ground. But the Giants, they have a lot of guys who can put it out. That's why I'd say that one was a little better."

PGA TITLE CONTENDER

Hickok Enjoying 'Homecoming'

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

It has been 20 years since Darrell Hickok knocked about Recreation Park as a daily routine, but he played the course like he owned it Friday to emerge as a surprise title threat in the $13,000 Southern California PGA Championship.

Only two other players performed as sensationally as Hickok did in the third and fourth rounds. One, Joe Mance, was Darrell's afternoon victim, and the other, Jack Fleck, is his opponent this morning. Hickok, a 1947 Wilson High grad who used to shag balls at Rec Park, was one of two unseeded players to advance to the quarterfinals. The other was Paul McGuire, who upset Jerry Barber, 1 up. McGuire, from San Gabriel CC, won his morning match in unique fashion over Clayton Aleridge. With a 1 up lead on the 18th hole, Paul played the wrong ball on the fairway, forfeited the hole, and then birdied the 19th to win.

The six seeded players to win were Pinky Stevenson, Eddie Merrins, Jimmy Powell, Mac Hunter, two matches Friday, and that's more than any of the other remaining six are in four matches. For the tourney, Fleck is 17-under, Hickok 15, Hunter 10, Stevenson and Merrins 8, Powell 6, McGuire 5 and Scodeller 1.

Birdies came in bunches

Friday as 21 of the 24 matches were won with under-par shooting. Ironically, the three that were not came in the afternoon rounds — Powell (73) over Joe Kirkwood, Scodeller (73) over Tom Barber,

TARGET: BOAT SPEED RECORD

Mike Dubiel, Huntington Beach artist, figures on putting the finishing touches on the unblown fuel hydroplane record when he drives his Gladiator in the second Grand Prix for drag boats today and Sunday at Marine Stadium.

Dubiel, who makes his living by designing and painting exotic finishes on race cars and boats, believes he will establish a world's record at Long Beach with his 468-cubic inch Chevy engine in the Charger hull.

"I know my boat is capable of doing 150 miles per hour and I think this is the time to do it," said the driver-owner. "I had it doing 145.86 at Whiskey Creek in Redding a couple of weeks ago but didn't have a chance to back-up the time because it started raining."

Dubiel's clocking equalled the world's record for unblown fuel hydro set by the late Jerry Gleason at Skiland in 1968.

The Gladiator pit crew can easily be identified by their unique costumes designed by Lynn Dubiel, Mike's wife. The costumes are Roman-style in gold and red and the female portion of the crew wear gold bikinis, red capes and helmets with the bright red plume.

Qualifying gets under way at 10 a.m. today, with finals at noon Sunday. Tickets are $2 for today and $3 Sunday.

Fregosi Belts 2 Homers

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — Maybe they are destiny's darlings.

Thursday night it was six doubles and stingy relief pitching that were the instruments of success. Friday night it was four home runs and Clyde Wright. And Jim Fregosi.

On Thursday morning, Wright ripped open a telegram. It was from a friend in his native Jefferson City, Tenn., and it alluded to his less than spectacular role in the All-Star game.

"Don't worry, Clyde," the telegram read, "We still are proud of you."

The natives of Jefferson City should be ecstatic today.

Wright won his 13th

ANGELS OF DAY

CLYDE WRIGHT won 13th game with 4-hit shut-out and JIM FREGOSI homered twice as Angels whipped Washington, 10-0.

game Friday, a professional four-hit blanking of the Senators. He also hit his first major league home run and added a couple of singles, and the Angels took the cue and mauled Washington, 10-0.

In this year of the great turnabout, Wright is the optimist. He has pitched a no-hitter, hit a home run and has won 13 games. "There are few mountains left for him to climb."

"Just two," he insisted, "20 wins and a World Series check."

Neither are out of the question the way the Angels are performing these evenings.

They have won 18 of their last 26 games including 10 of 14 this month and they now trail league-leading Minnesota by four games.

They smacked a record-tying six doubles Thursday and Friday they sent four baseballs soaring out of the park — a seasonal peak.

Two of them belonged to Fregosi, the latter his 17th, putting him one shy of his career high of 18 established in 1964. Fregosi also had one other hit and boosted his average over the .300 mark for the first time this year. It came to rest at .301.

"Gee, I've got a good chance to hit 18 again," the shortstop said flippantly.

Manager Lefty Phillips was more sincere.

"If we happen to win this thing there is no doubt that Jim Fregosi should be the Most Valuable Player," Phillips allowed. "He is the sparkplug... the man who makes us go. I could lose any other player to injuries and survive but I could not survive without my shortstop."

Fregosi, who also owns a 10-game hitting streak, was modest about his accomplishment — the third time this year he has hit two in one game.

"Both balls would have been caught in Anaheim," he said. "They seem to jump out here."

The other homer went to Roger Repoz, his ninth. Repoz drove in four runs as the Angels gathered 14 hits in winning for the fourth time in five tries at RFK Stadium, once a house of horrors for the Californians.

Wright was not as sharp as he was on the night of July 3 when he no-hit Oakland.

"I struggled with my control for the first three innings but when we got all those runs I started to relax," he explained. "When you relax you seem to have more on your pitches."

His three hits gave him

Eagle Earns Casper Golf Lead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Masters champion Billy Casper scrambled out of the pack Friday with a five-under-par 67 to take a one-stroke lead over Charles Coody after the second round of the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Casper started the day at the Whitmarsh Valley CC in a second place deadlock with Coody and three others at 68, one stroke behind first round leaders Bob Murphy, Labron Harris and Don Massengale.

Casper, a two-time tour winner this year, improved on his first day's performance by carding an eagle, four birdies and against one bogey for a 36 hole total of 135.

Coody also had an eagle as he matched his opening round performance of 68 to be alone at 136 while Murphy and PGA champion Ray Floyd were deadlocked at 137 at the halfway point of the 72-hole tourney.

Australia's Bruce Crampton and former Georgia Tech football star Bunky Henry were at 138 while Larry Hinson, former local pro, Bert Yancey and Jack Harden were together at 139.

Casper started slowly but consistently, getting birdies on his second and eighth holes and then started to charge in, shaving more strokes off par with birdies on his 11th and 12th holes.

On his 14th hole, a par five, he went 10-under for

A HOT ROUND

Billy Casper's caddy flashes smile as the Masters champion wipes face with towel after carding eagle on 14th hole Friday in the tourney when he put his second shot — a two iron — on the green and made a 140-foot putt for the eagle.

But he lost a stroke on the 17th hole as he hit "a 210-yard, eight iron" approach shot over the green of the par-four hole and took three more strokes to get down.

Coody, winner of the 1969 Cleveland Open, which was his first tour victory since 1964, had his eagle on the par five 17th hole when he hit a three iron out of the right rough onto the green and made four birdie and two bogey the 15-foot putt. This helped to improve on his round.

Harris and Massengale slipped back to 141, six strokes off the pace, as both had two-over-par 74s.

The tourney, which suffered the loss of drawing cards Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino when they withdrew after the first round, lost several other players Friday.

Former U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi and John Jacobs were excused by the sponsor, and Allan Henning and Don Soug were disqualified because of scorecard errors.

The field of 145 was cut to 73 players for the final 36 holes. Among those who failed to make the 146 score cutoff were Doug Sanders, Chi Chi Rodriguez and former U.S. Open champion Julius Boros.

Stevenson, 1969 runnerup from Virginia C, was unspectacular in ousting Doug Joyner, 4-2, and Ralph Robinson, 4-3, and says he must play better against Merrins, who has yet to be pressed in four matches. Pinky hasn't been pushed, either.

Powell, 1968 champion, missed eight putts inside of six feet against Kirkwood and will have to remedy that to beat McGuire, who lost to the Yonba Linda better the last two years, 3-1 and 2-1.

Stevenson, Powell and Hunter rate as favorites today, with the Hickok-Fleck match even. Hunter, 1967 winner, has been under-par in every match.

Ferraris, Carner Tied in Women's Golf Tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio — Jan Ferraris' brilliant putting and Jo Anne Carner's solid shooting carried the pair to opening round four under par 69s Friday and the lead in the $20,000 LPGA Jaycee Open Golf Tournament.

One shot back at 70 came veteran Marilyn Smith, Lesley Holbert and new touring pro Carole Skala.

Judy Rankin and Mary Mills solved Northwood Hills Country Club's 6,421-yards for 71s.

Beth Stone, Sandra Palmer, Jo Ann Prentice and Betsy Rawls were tied at 72.

Defending champion Marlene Hagge was alone at par 73.

Miss Ferraris, 23, of San Francisco, had 10 one-putts greens and used only 26 putts to fire her best round of the year. She birdied two, three, seven and eighteen and had no bogeys.

Mrs. Carner, 31, a five-time national amateur champion from Lake Porth, Fla., banged in six birdie putts to offset a pair of bogeys. It was the second time she had broken 70 in the last 15 years.

CALL SUMMIT MEETING TO END NFL DISPUTE

Associated Press

The president of the National Football League Players Assn., its contract talks with pro football owners stalemated, said Friday night the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has called for a meeting of both sides in the dispute Wednesday night in Washington.

John Mackey, Baltimore Colts tight end and NFLPA president, made the announcement in New York, and called on the NFL owners negotiating committee to "be present to make good faith efforts to reach agreement."

There was no immediate comment from the owners, whose chief negotiator has been Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys.

In Chicago, however, it was announced that an executive committee meeting of the 26 NFL owners has been called for Tuesday in New York to receive a report on the negotiations.

"We asked the FMCS to intervene because the owners continue to refuse to negotiate with us and we want good faith negotiations to commence immediately," Mackey said.

The NFLPA had earlier instructed all of its members to stay away from training camps, which started opening earlier this week. The owners countered by barring veterans, pending settlement of the labor dispute.

Mackey said he hoped NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle would step in over the weekend and help solve the issues.

He predicted that if the deadlock isn't ended by Monday the College All-Star game July 31 in Chicago "will not be played."

Pittsburgh Steeler vice president Dan Rooney says the College All-Star game is a "farce" and should be abandoned.

The Steelers have two players at the All-Star camp. But their heralded quarterback, Terry Bradshaw, the No. 1 draft pick in the country, was withdrawn this week from the camp because of a pulled muscle.

The result was a controversy with the sponsors of the charity game, the Chicago Tribune. According to Rooney, an All-Star official from the Tribune told the Steelers the injury to Bradshaw shouldn't prevent him from playing.

"The reason we still send out rookies," Rooney told the AP, "is because we in pro football are indebted to the Chicago Tribune for the game."

"They started it in the early days of football when it wasn't what it is today. But the game has turned into a farce," he said.

Phil Olsen from Utah State, Boston's top draft choice, was ruled out of the All-Star game because of a knee injury. Quarterback Dennis Shaw of San Diego State said his contract negotiations with Buffalo are at a standstill. "I guess I'm going back to school. I guess they don't want me. I think that's why they picked up Virgil Carter from Chicago."

New Orleans said fifth-round draft pick Glenn Cannon of Mississippi will have to undergo surgery for an Achilles tendon, and fullback Jim Ols of Ohio State also is sidelined with a slight ligament separation in his left ankle.

The New York Jets were hit with their first casualty of training camp Friday when tight end Pete Johnson from Penn State sustained an injured left knee.

Cleveland released seven rookies — Tom Eitelj (Ferris St.), Mike Spiller (San Jose St.), Charles Fabb (McMurry College), Joe Kavcar (Kent St.), Leo Pearson (no college), Ken Westlund (Bucknell), Dick Sarason (Miami), Cincin all cut free agents Ron Stephens (Baldwin Wallace) and Larry Stewers (Saint Clare).

SMITH, HEWITT TOPPLED Romanians Win on Court

WASHINGTON — Ion Tiriac of Romania upset Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., Friday and eliminated America's top ranked player from the $35,000 Washington International Tennis Tournament.

Eighth-seeded Tiriac defeated Smith, seeded second, 6-3, 10-12, 6-2, in the quarterfinal round.

Tiriac joined fellow Romanian Davis Cupper Ilie Nastase, the No. 1 seed, in today's semi-final round. Nastase ousted Bob Hewitt, South Africa, 5-7, 6-1, 6-1.

Hewitt disputed baseline calls, threw his racket and smacked balls wildly against the fence.

Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Texas, ousted Georges Goven of France, 6-4, 6-3, and Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., downed Dick Crealy of Australia, 6-4, 6-3.

10-Minute Win by Intrepid

NEW PORT, R.I. — Intrepid walloped Heritage by 10 minutes and 18 seconds Friday, keeping her undefeated record in the America's Cup observation trials intact.

Weatherly won the second race of the day when Valiant, which had been leading for most of the race fouled out at the fifth mark of the 15.2-mile course.

A New York Yacht Club race committee spokesman said there had been contact between the two yachts at the last turning mark of the course.

Intrepid's easy victory gave her a 9-0 record for the July trials which will end today. Weatherly is 4-4. Valiant is 3-6, and Heritage is 1-7.

TV-Radio Editor

Ten years ago the late Edward R. Murrow did a program on migrant workers for CBS called "Harvest of Shame."

Huntley was narrator for a special on NBC called "Migrant" which brought the plight of migrant workers up to date. There has been no apparent change in their condition in the space of a decade.

The kind I think he will want to be remembered by since he is leaving NBC — showed the condition of workers in the fields in Florida, but he said it could be applied to the migrant in most other parts of the country.

Martin Carr, producer, said, "The pressure from Coke was enormous."

Reuven Frank, president of NBC News, said: "There was no pressure, They (Coke representatives) brought us facts we did not have before. We heard them out. After they singled them out for blame in a situation where so many companies are involved. We removed the onus from them." He characterized the meeting as "angry. They expressed themselves."

One of the changes reportedly made as a result of the meeting involved an interview with a woman who lives in a shack. The woman says the shack is owned by Coca Cola. A voice over adds, "Coca Cola is at work on a major plan which it claims will correct the failings it has found in its citrus operation."

These are not conditions that depress one; these are conditions that anger one: children, who should be in school, working in the field with parents ("What's wrong with a child being with its mother out in the fresh air?"); substandard dwellings (they are legal because they were in existence before standards for such luxuries as running water and inside toilets were enacted); living conditions in which dwellers are prohibited from discussing their plight with newsmen because "it is private company property on which the migrants live."

There was another interesting sidelight to the documentary. During the commercial breaks there were no commercials — merely public service announcements.

It is a strange commentary on the priorities of people who advertise on TV. Every day we see sponsored programs on the possibilities of ecological doom. But a program about already doomed people can't find a sponsor.

ONE OF the big farm operators in Florida is the Coca Cola Company and the company was named on the program. There was an interesting sidelight to this aspect of the program. The New York Times reported the documentary was viewed by representatives of the firm before it was shown and they were "angry."

As the bookle peeled off 52 one-hundred dollar bills and handed them to one of his clients, his attitude was somewhat less than ecstatic. In a poor attempt to mask his feelings, the bookmaker asked the better just how he did so well at handicapping if he knew so little about horses — as he professed. Counting the money gleefully, the would-be gambler explained that he picked a horse by holding the racing form in front of his eyes and punched the paper with a pin.

"If what you say is true, then how do you account for picking this last 4-horse combination that cost me 52 big ones?" the bookie rasped. "Well," he replied, "while having dinner with my secretary — I didn't have a pin — so I used a fork!"

GARDENING

* * * * *

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Raphiolepis is a member of the rose family, and of Asian origin. It has won the respect of professional gardeners, landscape contractors and landscape architects due to its hardiness. It has heat tolerance and can stand the cold down to zero. It is somewhat drought resistant and practically pest free.

Examples of the toughness of this plant are:

A group of them has bloomed beautifully although growing in a cement planter, facing west and exposed to the sun and to reflected heat from a glazed-brick wall behind the plants, and sidewalk before them.

Another group does well although planted on a slight slope where received little water and no light. While the plants develop very little annual growth, they bloom each year even though the soil in which they grow is like decomposed granite.

A third group is well cared for and growing well, although in a planter located in a bank parking lot. This lot is blacktopped and the reflected and direct heat upon the plants is intense.

One of the newer raphiolepis has semicurving and graceful branching growth. It is called "Ballerina." The attractive pink blossoms in early spring, and during the summer, add a piquant touch to the plant. Bronze-toned foliage develops twice a year, adding color change in the leafage. The attractive plant prompts one to believe it would be a fine container plant.

"Springtime" and "Enchantress" are two other attractive Raphiolepis. All tolerate average garden watering.

A PROFESSIONAL gardener speculated on why a few-month-old sod lawn on one of his jobs grows poorly, despite the proper feeding, watering and mowing attention it gets. The soil below the sodded lawn was not prepared after the old sod had been removed. Soil was barely loosened, and the grass sod laid. Hard organic material been worked into the hard soil at least four inches deep it would have improved it and a good sod lawn would have developed by now. Consider this, if you plan to have such grass lawn.

Several days ago I received a thought provoking note from Eddie King, a keen-minded professional horticulturist. He did us all a favor by reminding me that in my first June garden column "adjust mower" paragraph, I hadn't been specific, particularly about hybrid bermuda needing extremely close

mowing. His letter states

"Specifically Joe, I don't think you should recommend 1½-inches summer lawn mowing without qualification as to species of grass lawns. Certainly this is fine for the blue grasses etc., but as an example — I am landscaping a garden and doing over an overgrown Tif-green Bermuda lawn. I'm mowing it about three eighths of an inch. If I let it grow higher I would be inviting a thatch build up that would be out of this world! Even missing a weekly mowing would be very bad.

JOBS TO DO NOW

Hibiscus and gardenia flower buds should stop dropping now. The new spring flower bud drop was mainly due to erratic weather conditions.

Hose foliage with sharp spray of water to dislodge insects from more tender plants in the garden. Sharp spraying doesn't get rid of bugs, but it sure keeps them down to a minimum. Insecticide spraying cleans up the job.

Irrigate trees in lawns even though lawn sprinklers water them. Trees need deeper watering than the amount of water lawns get.

Now is good time to plant St. Augustine, Hybrid Bermuda, Dichondra, Zoysia, and Bermuda lawns. They thrive in hot weather. If they are kept moist, mulched, are lightly fertilized when well started, preferably with weak liquid fertilizer, they'll grow like mad and cover soil quickly.

Skeletonized plum tree leafage indicates that pear slugs are feeding on them. Stomach-type spray is recommended for control.

Cut off faded dahlia blossoms. Deep water the plants. Watch for spider mites and leaf miners.

GARDENS NEED SOIL COMPOST AVAILABLE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Every suburban garden needs a soil compost pile from which a supply of rich material for growing plants is available at all times.

You make one by piling and pressing down large quantities of leaves, weeds, grass and other vegetable matter. Ideally, this material ought to be layered with either animal or synthetic manure. It usually takes a year for such a compost heap to be ready for use. So if you don't have one now, you'll have to rely on commercial fertilizers.

If that's the case, make a note to start a compost heap this spring for use next spring.

FOR GENERAL use, the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends a commercial fertilizer containing five per cent nitrogen, 10 per cent phosphoric acid, and five or six per cent potash.

The composition and rate of application of this fertilizer depends on locality, soil and crops to be grown. For guidance, consult the local agricultural agent, a nurseryman or a neighbor who's an old hand at vegetable growing.

As a rule, commercial fertilizers should be applied within a few days before planting or when the crops are planted. One way: turn over the soil, spread the fertilizer from a pail or with a fertilizer distributor, then harrow the soil two or three times to get it in better condition and further mix the fertilizer with it.

Other helpful information about garden preparation from the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

—Roots of most garden crops spread to considerable distances, reaching throughout the surface soil. Fertilizer applied to the entire area, therefore, will be reached by the plants.

There Are Beans to Suit All Despite Antique Ban

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There are beans to suit the taste of almost every home gardener despite the ban placed upon them by mystics of old.

Some varieties such as snap beans, are widely known. Others get little action, largely because they have eluded the notice of your favorite earth-worker.

You may know the snap

Flower-Lover's Labor Lost to Weed Killer

By CHERYL ARVIDSON

NEWTON, Iowa (UPI) — A flower lover battling to restore the natural beauty of prairie flowers to Iowa's roadways had four years of time, money and anticipation destroyed in minutes by a blast of weed killer.

Frank Pellett, a greenhouse operator, has been working on his prairie flower project since 1966. In 1967 Pellett received a special waiver from then Gov. Harold E. Hughes, now a U.S. senator, to exempt a two-acre strip along a highway from Iowa Highway Commission weed-spraying crews.

THE SEEDS, many obtained from two universities and numerous private donors, were planted more than three years ago, but have been dormant until this summer.

"We had our first bloom ever this year," said the 39-year-old Pellett. "It was a beautiful brilliant red, but now it's dead."

The Highway Commission weed crew moved into Pellett's area last week and coated the area with what was believed to be the weed killer 2-4-D. Only a handful of the prairie flowers which were planted farthest away from the roadway were spared. Pellett said he doubted if any of the seeds from the dead plants could be salvaged.

"In the early 1800s, there were prairie flowers clear across the state in every color of the rainbow," said Pellett. "Now, few people have ever seen a prairie flower and they are virtually extinct across the country."

"The steel plow dealt the first blow," he said, "but it was the 2-4D that really finished the prairie flower off. My objective was to restore the flowers and make the whole state more beautiful."

"It's really discouraging to put in the money, effort and time on something worthwhile, and then have it ruined like this."

Why is

TODAY'S BIG VALUE

It's the answer to modern gardening the complete fertilizer PLUS

TERR-O-VITE supplies the important nutrients all plants must have to thrive.

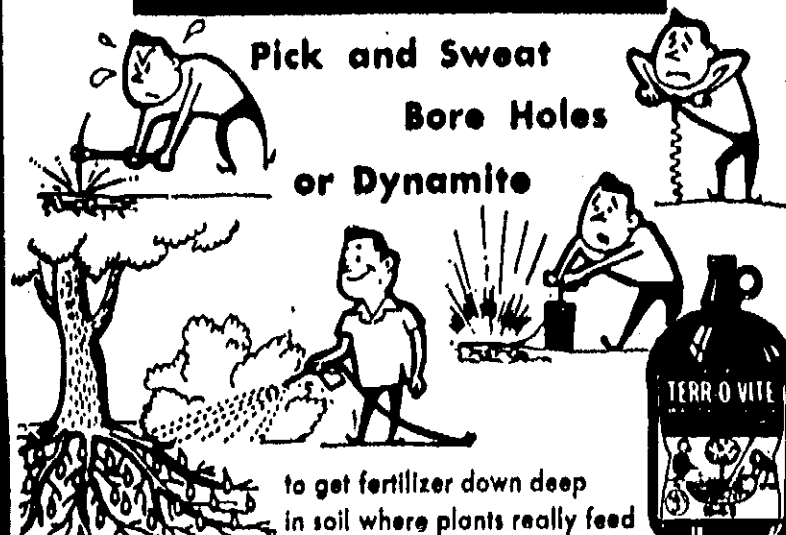

TERR-O-VITE contains elements that enter into the manufacture of vital root-forming enzymes and also reduces transplanting shock.

TERR-O-VITE's heavy concentration of Chelating Agents plus Chelated Iron, Zinc and Manganese help to prevent and cure Chlorosis (yellow foliage) induced by high concentrations of alkali in soil or water.

TERR-O-VITE's chemical reactions in the soil break down Adobe, Caliche, Hardpan and Alkali soils so they can be broken with a trowel instead of a tractor.

TERR-O-VITE's Wetter-Water principle saves water and fertilizer by reducing runoff.

DENNIS THE MENACE By Hank Ketchum

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Your needs in the year ahead lead you to adopt unorthodox methods, highly specialized skills. The basic trend is to intensify your efforts, abandon incidental extensions of your main enterprises. Your patience comes into good stead in the uphill pace of the next couple of years. Superficial attractions fade quickly. Today's natives are good at finding hidden things and have the "green thumb" of a good gardener.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take your share in your community's Sunday customs, then pursue intellectual matters. Any social contacts develop minor differences.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Plan for quiet Sunday. Family matters need little attention, but may be disturbed by other claims on your time. Avoid excesses in food and drink, retire early.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Theories about people are proved incorrect. This isn't the ideal day to make important decisions because the people involved are inattentive or undecided.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): If you are courteous and just listen, you will have a more accurate view of people around you. The temptation is to be candid on matters seldom mentioned.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): It now turns out your own plans are unfeasible. Go along with others, see what their habits and ideas are, then your comment is not so critical.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bring along company but keep moving, at least until the chance to relax arises for itself. Nothing is to be gained by offering comments or contradictions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): All things in moderation is easy enough today, and rather wonderful in results. Have a good try at it. Older people get in the way by demanding special attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentrate on affirming and building your home life today. Outside interests, business should wait another day.

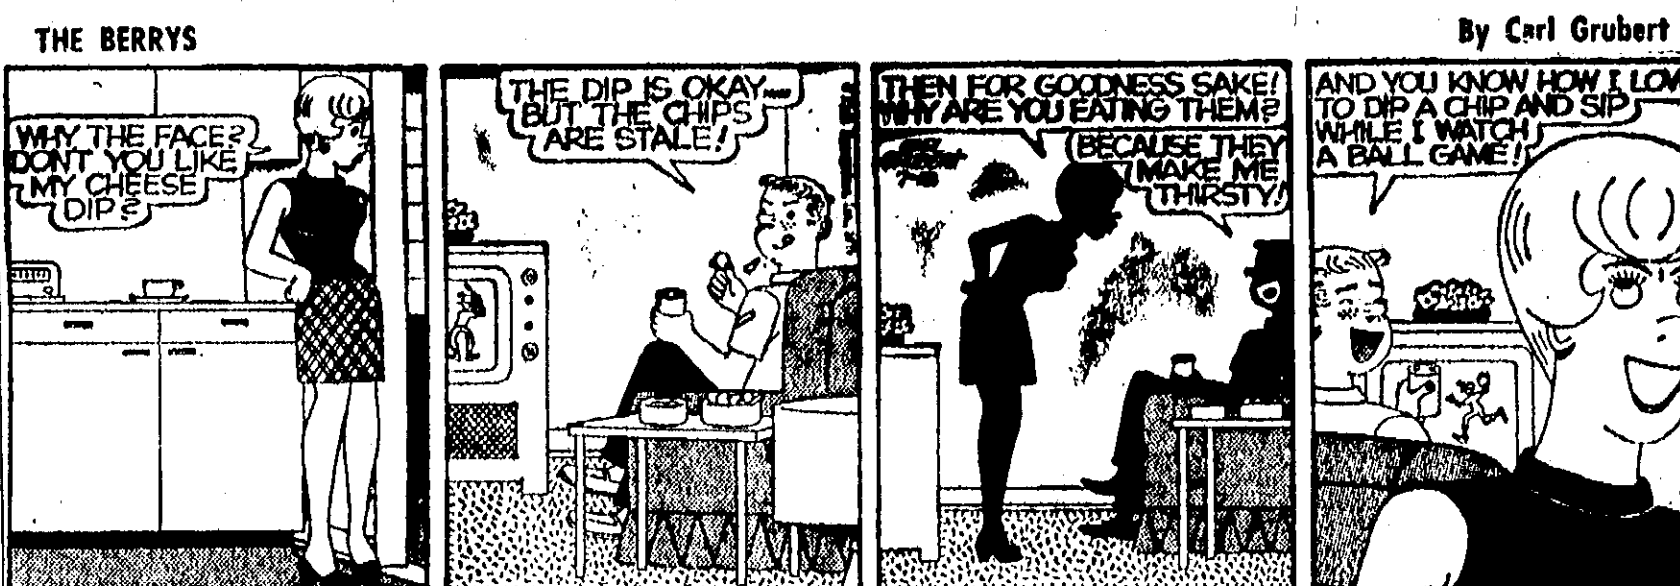

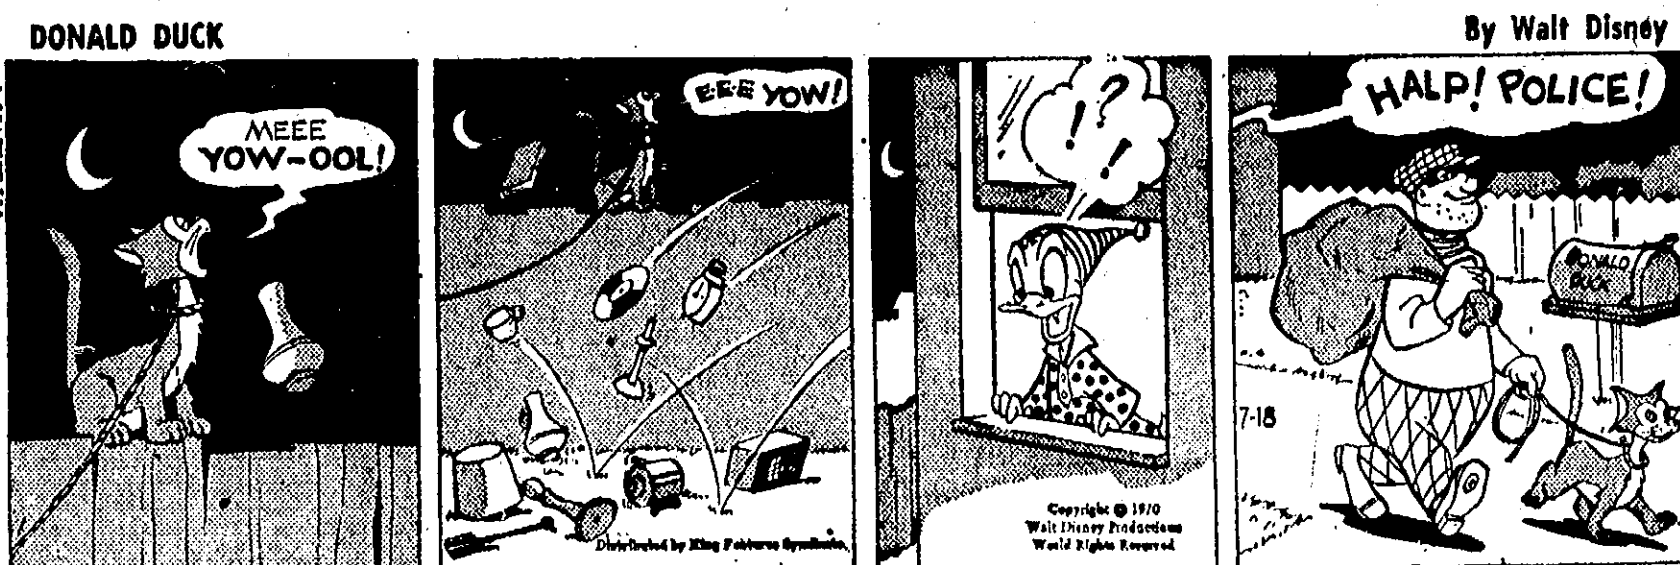

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lay aside all business actions, make it a day of spiritual growth and reflection on the state of your emotional life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This is a slow Sunday, socially and psychologically — proceed gently. Higher passions may be worth it by making things more convenient. Entertainment lightens the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Efforts to gain cooperation fare better. You give reasons rather than simply telling people what to do. Old friends, relatives cause some concern.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This Sunday is better spent praying and listening. Even small details offer protection for disorders. Relax early, let others do as they will.
